W. P. HILL, Crockett Station, Tenn., writes: "DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC has done wonders here. A lady who had been doctored nearly to death for several years, has been cured of Debility and Great Prostration by the use of DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC, which raised her from her bed, where she had been lying for many months."

Dr. Harter:— Mr. James Brown of our county, has requested us to tender you his grateful acknowledgments for the great benefits his wife received from the use of your IRON TONIC. He tells us that, after having paid three or four hundred dollars doctors' bills, two bottles of your IRON TONIC did her more good than all other medicines she ever used. A Wreck on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCE, KAS., May 7.—A freight train was wrecked at this place this morning about 1 o'clock on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe. The switch leading to the Douglas County Mills had become partly disconnected, leaving about an inch of rail projecting, which the drivers and the engine caught, throwing it off the track. After running on the ties about 200 feet the engine was thrown on her right side. The tank was disconnected and thrown across the track. One car loaded with furniture was completely demolished, several other cars badly damaged, and considerable damage done to the engine and tank. No one was hurt. The wreck is between the switches, leaving the long passing switch clear. No delay to trains will occur.

All Safe.

GALVESTON, May 7.—A courier from Magellon Mountains at Silver City, New Mexico, reports Tiernan, Hunter and their party, thought killed by Indians, all safe. The Indians are still on the ground. John Keller, mistaking his wife for a burglar, shot her dead.

THE BOOM BUSTED.

A Disastrous Break in the Pennsylvania Delegation.

The Philadelphians Resolve to Vote Against Grant.

Quiet But Intense Excitement Over the Turn in Affairs.

New York Also Joins the Republican Revolt.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The Herald Washington special says: Mr. McManus, of Philadelphia, was in town to-day on a brief visit to Senator Don Cameron. His object was to inform Cameron that ten out of twelve of the Philadelphia city delegates to Chicago had determined that they would not vote for ex-President Grant under any circumstances. He told Cameron further that if he attempted to enforce the rule on the delegation at Chicago he would find himself in the minority with against him, and he advised and urged him to make known at once to the delegation that he gave up the unit rule. To this Cameron is said to have replied curtly that the unit rule was agreed to, and he expected to stand by it himself and hold the delegation to it. McManus returned to Philadelphia this afternoon and reported to some of his friends before going that there were no further relations between Mr. Cameron and himself.

THE EXCITEMENT

among the Pennsylvanians is quiet but intense. The symptons of revolt, which are increasing day by day, are watched with lively interest.

New York Revolts.

NEW YORK, May 7.—A dispatch from Albany to the Evening Post states that Senator Wooodin rose in his place to-day and read from manuscript a speech in opposition to the unit rule in the Chicago Convention, and declared for Blaine. Senators Sessions and Birdsall followed the lead of Woodin.

Maryland Republican Convention.

FREDERICK, MD., May 7.—In the Republican State Convention a resolution expressing unalterable opposition to the nomination for the Presidency of any person for a third time was laid upon the table, yeas 81, nays 27. James A. Gary, Jacob Tome, Lloyd Lowndes and J. Morrison Harris were elected delegates at large to Chicago. Adjourned.

New Hampshire Against Tilden.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Special dispatches from the most reliable sources make it absolutely sure that a majority of the New Hampshire delegation to Cincinnati is squarely against Tilden, with a preference for Bayard.

Terrible Ravages of the Fire in the Oil Well Region—Canada Notes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The fires in the oil country about Bradford, Pa., began from a torpedo being lowered into a well, when the well made a flow of oil, throwing the torpedo out of the hole against a derrick. Instantly there was a terrific explosion, scattering the engine-house, boiler-house, derrick and machinery in a thousand different directions. The oil caught fire and shot up into the air a hundred feet in a blazing column. The ground for miles around was covered with a thin layer of oil and oil-soaked leaves. A strong wind was blowing and the fire spread with frightful rapidity. Such was the awful speed of the flames that nothing could be saved and people ran for their lives, seeking safety in the open field. The people of Rew City lost everything, and for them and their fellow-sufferers subscription lists are open to-day. About a hundred oil wells and appointments, with hundreds of thousands of barrels of oil, were burned in an hour. The sufferers are poor producers. Continuous explosions of oil tanks and rushing floods of blazing oil down the hillsides filled the people with wild terror and excitement. By a strange fatality three other and distinct conflagrations raged about the same time, making a semi-circle of fire threatening Bradford.

CANADIAN OPERATIVES.

Canadian cotton and woolen manufacturers say there are well-founded suspicions that American manufacturers and railways are in a conspiracy to make operatives dissatisfied. Agents are engaging for the States only men with families, who pay more to railways for transportation, and are less inclined to return to Canada if disappointed. Railway agents are said to be responsible for the exodus of young men to the States, holding out great promise of remunerative employment.

THE CINCINNATI CONFERENCE.

Business Transacted at To-Day's Session—Resolutions Reported.

CINCINNATI, May 7.—Bishop Peck presided at the session of the General Conference to-day. The call of the Conference for resolutions was completed. The report of Dr. Saml. Upham, fraternal delegate to the Methodist Church of Canada, and that of Rev. M. W. Taylor, fraternal delegate to the African M. E. Church, were received.

A resolution by Dr. A. J. Kynett, for the appointment of a committee to consider the best method for informing members of the church in regard to the benevolent work of the church was adopted. It contemplates the establishment of a monthly magazine devoted to this sort of information.

The special committees ordered on the centennial of American Methodism, on memorial services, on entertainment, on the expenses of the conference, on pastoral address, on statistics, judiciary and observance of the Sabbath, were reported to Bishop Harris.

WASHINGTON.

The Appropriation Bills.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7.—The subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee have completed the legislative bill, and will report it to the full committee on Monday. It appropriates $16,211,286—considerably under the estimates. Sundry civil and general deficiency bills are well in hand, and may be reported to the House within ten days.

CABINET TOPICS.

In a Cabinet meeting to-day it was decided to notify all Government employes in the vicinity of the Ute reservation to be on the lookout for any attempted invasion and report the same forthwith. In regard to the Dakota Governorship but little was said and no appointment agreed upon.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The President pro tem. laid before the Senate the credentials of Senator James A. Garfield, and they were placed on file.

Senator Voorhees submitted a resolution instructing the Committee on Public Lands to inquire into the propriety, expediency and public policy of declaring all lands heretofore granted in aid of the construction of railroads, and which have not been earned by compliance with the terms of grants, open to public entry and settlement the same as other Government lands, and the said committee shall have the right to report by bill or otherwise. Printed and laid on the table.

The conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was taken up on motion of Senator Beck, and after a short debate passed without division. Senator Beck explained that inasmuch as the sundry civil and other appropriation bills would soon follow, the appropriation for expenses of the Indian Commission could be made if thought best.

Senator Hoar announced that he would call up his Geneva award resolution on Tuesday.

Senator Teller presented the views of the minority of the Wallace Committee on the subject of political assessment. Ordered to be printed and laid on the table.

The morning hour having expired, the Senate resumed consideration of the Kellogg-Spofford resolution.

Senator Pryor supported the resolutions in a legal argument to the effect that the pleas of res adjudicata and estoppel were not rightfully relied on by the opponents of the resolution.

House.

The consideration of the Post-office appropriation bill was resumed at 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. Cannon opposed the amendment adopted by the committee of the whole yesterday, authorizing the Postmaster-General to remit in favor of the colonies of New Zealand and New South Wales so much of the cost of overland transportation of Australian closed mails as he may deem just. This amendment would enable the Postmaster-General to exercise a discretion in letting mails for England pass through the United States without any charge against the Government of Great Britain.

The House then voted upon the amendments. The first amendment on which a separate vote was demanded was that authorizing the Postmaster-General to use $350,000 of the $9,490,000 appropriated for the railway mail service to obtain and secure from the railways necessary and special facilities for the postal service.

The amendment was adopted; yeas, 110; nays, 66.

The next amendment was that all star routes shall be relet after thirty days' advertisement, as now provided by law, on the 1st of October, 1880, on which pay for the expedition of schedules ordered during the fiscal years of 1879 and 1880, shall exceed 50 per cent of contract price before such expedition, provided that this proviso shall not prevail when the present contractor desires to continue the contract as reduced. Adopted by a vote of 118 to 57.

This amendment now takes the place of the proviso originally reported by the Appropriation Committee to the Star Service clause of the bill. Other amendments were then agreed to, but before a vote could be taken on the bill the legislative session of Thursday ended and that of Friday began.

When the journal of Thursday had been read, the Post-office appropriation bill was again taken up and passed as amended.

The Advance in Western Union.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The advance in Western Union is attributed to a decision in favor of that company in the matter of the Page patent. It is understood that the Western Union will now seek to enjoin other companies from its further use; also that the matter will be carried to the Supreme Court.

Drowned While Attending a Picnic.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 7.—Two young men named Crocker and McMillan were drowned yesterday while attending the Good Templars' picnic near here. Annie Mitchel, who was with them in the boat which capsized, was saved by a boy.

Flames.

NEW YORK, May 7.—A fire this morning burned the saw mill, in Jersey City, of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, together with a quantity of lumber, carpenter shops and a train of coal cars. The engine-house was unroofed and the machinery destroyed. Loss $35,000.

Fighting Forest Fires.

WARETOWN, N. J., May 7.—The whole population of this region are fighting forest fires. The flames swept last night through the cedar woods to Oyster Bay, destroying a residence and five yachts at anchor.

No Prize Fighting to Be Allowed.

SIMCOE, ONT., May 7.—The authorities are taking action to prevent the prize fights on Canadian soil between Paddy Ryan and Joe Goss and George Roome and Mike Donovan.

A Newspaper Transfer.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 7.—The Indianapolis Journal was sold to-day by Martindale & Co. to Hon. John C. New, ex-Treasurer of the United States.

ALARMING DISTRESS.

DUBLIN, May 7.—Alarming distress prevails at Kilreede, County Galway. It is stated that hundreds of persons will perish if food is not sent immediately.

Spain.

MADRID, May 7.—A new Cuban loan is to be raised by public subscription.

THE CUBAN UPRISINGS.

The Cabinet has vested Captain-General Blanco, of Cuba, with discretionary powers in dealing with the conspiracy at Mayari. Instructions have also been sent to the representatives of Spain at Washington and Central America urging that Cuban refugees be not allowed to foment a second rising. The Spanish Government will increase the new issue of Cuban loan from $16,000,000 to $18,000,000.

France.

PARIS, May 7.—Sixty cotton factories are closed at Roubaix, and 15,000 persons are idle. Five thousand more operatives have struck at Tourcoing. There is also a strike at Rouen, and many silk factories are closed. Higher wages and less hours are demanded.

HANGED HIMSELF.

The man who murdered the railway contractor on the express train hanged himself with the bandages of the wounds he received in the struggle with his victim.

The Arctic-Bound Whalers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The revenue cutter Tom Corwin, appointed to go to the relief of Arctic-bound whalers and the missing Jeannette, has been sheeted with an inch of oak and provided with ice-breakers of boiler-iron from the bow to ninety feet aft. Capt. Hooker expects to reach Behring Strait by the 15th of June, and, when the ice breaks, will get into the Arctic regions as early as possible thereafter. Where he may afterward go depends upon the information he may gather from the natives. The Corwin takes one year's provisions.

Killed by a Railway Engine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, May 7.—The Pacific Express going east last night killed one Mathews, a livery man, one mile west of Pleasant Hill. The engine caught his buggy at the crossing, making a total wreck, knocking him to one side of the track lifeless. The engineer was Bob Lester, of this city, and the engine 101 the same engine that killed Rogers at Muddy Bridge Thursday night, April 29th.

Immense Icebergs.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The steamer Dye, from Antwerp, arrived to-day and reports ice-fields, ice-blocks and icebergs, one of the last-mentioned being large as an island, from April 30 to May 3, and was obliged to stop the ship at night owing to the proximity of icebergs. She sighted two ships in a field of ice, but they showed no signals.

Doomed to Death.

HARTFORD, CONN., May 7.—The Court of Errors denies a new trial to Henry Hamlin, sentenced to be hanged May 28, for the murder of a State prison watchman named Shipman.

Cox and Balboa.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Governor Cornell will hear counsel for Cox and Balboa, sentenced to be hanged May 28th, who seek a cummutation of their sentence.

SCALDED TO DEATH.

A Little Boy Overturns a Coffee-Pot on Himself With Fatal Effect.

An inquest was held this morning by Coroner Auler on the body of George Pruess, a little boy who died from the effects of scalds received a few days ago. The testimony of the father of the deceased, Charles Pruess, was as follows: "I reside at No. 2128 Elizabeth street, where the accident occurred which resulted in the death of the deceased. On the 2d of May, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the child was sitting in a high chair at the table, upon which was placed the coffee-pot, filled with very hot coffee. While engaged in conversation the child drew the coffeepot toward him and spilled the hot liquid over his breast, abdomen and right arm, scalding him severely. I immediately sent for a physician and soon Dr. Eadron arrived, but he was unable to save the boy's life. He died on the 6th of May at 2 o'clock." A verdict of accidental death was returned.

Court of Criminal Correction.

Matthias Roth, charged with assaulting J. M. Palzin on the 30th of last April, was discharged this morning, as the case against him was dismissed. Catherine Gleason, of No. 1023 Wash street, had her case dismissed. She was charged with selling liquor without the necessary license. The prosecuting witness was required to pay the costs. Nick Schumacher was held in the sum of $1,000 to answer the charge of grand larceny preferred against him by James Bryden, of 120 S. Second street. Nick is charged with stealing $375 from the prosecuting witness. The prisoner, in default of bail, was committed to jail. The charge of assault to kill preferred again Albert Leffler by Kate McCarthy was changed to assault and battery. To the latter the defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs. Jennie Hawdley confessed that she had stolen a muff of the value of $15 from Pat Gibbons, No. 1343 North Seventh street. She was, therefore, sent to the jail for the period of one month. Sentence was deferred in the case of Robert Smith, charged with climbing on moving cars, to which he pleaded guilty. James Scott and John Dillon, charged with stealing $200 from Nicholas Mortay, were discharged after an examination.

DIED FROM VIOLENCE.

The Result of a Coroner's Inquest on the Body of Patrick Tobin.

Coroner Bader, of St. Clair county, Ill., held an inquest to-day at East St. Louis on the body of Patrick Tobin, who died yesterday afternoon in the First Ward. The man died of an affection of the brain, but as he had received a blow from William Querney, a saloon keeper, last Sunday week, from which time his ailment dates, it was necessary to hold an inquest to establish the facts. A jury was secured and several witnesses examined concerning the altercation.

MRS. JOHANNA BENSON, with whom the deceased boarded, testified that on the afternoon of Sunday, April 25, the deceased "came home about 2 o'clock. His face was considerably bruised, disfigured and bloody. About a week afterwards he told me that William and Thomas Querney beat him on the day he came home bruised. On Tuesday, May 4, Dr. Winton attended him and said that his brain was affected. I went to Querney's and requested him (William Querney) to send Tobin to the hospital, but he refused. He died at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He had been on a spree since April 15. From what I heard from the deceased I believed that the Querneys were the cause of his sickness, and for this reason I asked them to send him to the hospital. On last Sunday he complained of the pain in his head and grew worse until he died."

WILLIAM QUERNEY

testified as follows: "Last Sunday a week ago the deceased came to my saloon and attacked me, tearing all the buttons off my coat. He followed me behind the bar and I gave him a lick with my left fist over the left eye. He did not fall down. The reason we fell out was that I refused to give him drink for nothing. He interfered with my attending to my customers. On the night of Sunday, 18th, he came to my house and bid me good-bye and said that I would not see him again—he was going to commit suicide. On the afternoon of April 25 when I pushed Tobin from behind the counter he fell against Michael Gillespie, who fell off the keg on which he was sitting, and Tobin fell on top of him."

James McCaffrey testified that he was present at the difficulty and William Querney called for some one to assist him in putting Tobin out. Querney shoved Tobin out and fell on top of him. When the men got up Querney struck Tobin. Michael Gillespie, James McGhil, Thomas Canty and one or two others testified to the fact that Tobin was drunk and was following Querney, who struck him in the face, but did not knock him down. Thomas Querney testified that in the forenoon of the 25th of April he had put tobin, who was drunk and harmless, out of the saloon, but did not know any other facts in connection with the affair.

Dr's. O. D. Winton and H. C. Fairbrother held an autopsy on the remains this morning and submitted the following report to the Coroner's jury:

We find the body in a healthy condition, except the left side of the brain and the left side of the meningeal coverings. In these we find undoubted evidence of inflammation, especially in the meninges, where the inflammatory products extend over an area of two inches in width and four inches in length. At this point, and lying against the side of the left cerebral lobe about one ounce of extravisated blood was found. This extravisation was the cause of the inflammation, which in our opinion resulted in death. The cause of this extravization was in all probability violence, as a blow or a fall.

O. D. WINTON.
H. C. FAIRBROTHER.

After concluding the taking of the testimony, the jury retired this afternoon.

Row Over a Piece of Land.

The Welsh and Daily families claim the title to a piece of property situated on Magnolia street near the western limit of the city, and Justice Smythe has been called on to decide which of the two is the rightful owner. Thomas Welsh avers that Patrick Daily and he lived in the same house and never had any trouble until the 22nd ult., when Daily suddenly declared that he had no title to the property. A row ensued, and a few days ago the Daileys ousted the Welshs from the premises and have not since permitted them to enjoy the benefits which they claim should be theirs. Welsh alleges he has been damaged by this deprivation in the sum of $200, for which amount he sues, as well as for possession of the property. The case will be tried shortly.

More Exodusters.

Five families of negro emigrants arrived here to-day on the steamer Grand Tawer, and were taken charge of by the Exodus Board. Three families are from Mississippi and two from Louisiana. A number of colored people will be sent to Kansas to-morrow.

First District Police Court.

Christian Schaff, living on Lami street, was fined $5 for keeping a vicious dog which had bitten a little girl named Lizzie Morrison. A. M. Glover enriched the city to the extent of $25. He paid that amount on account of carrying concealed weapons in the shape of brass knuckles. W. Wilson, the colored man who attempted to carry off a little white child named Alice Smith, was fined $50. This will necessitate his sojourning at the Work-house for a period of 100 days. Dick Graffney was found intoxicated on the street. He promised to reform and the Court discharged him. The remaining sixty cases on the day's docket were continued.

MacQueen, the Murderer.

This morning Wm. MacQueen, the man who murdered his wife, Agnes MacQueen, on the 26th of April, by striking her with an axe, appeared before Judge Cady, of the Court of Criminal Correction. The original charge of assault to kill, which was made against him before the death of his victim, was nolle pros'ed by the Prosecuting Attorney and a new charge of murder preferred. MacQueen's case has not yet been investigated by the Grand Jury, and will not come up before next week.

THERE were forty cases called in the Second District Police Court to-day and $23 collected from fines imposed.

THE subdivision of the Stoddard School will have a grand picnic at Forest Park to-morrow.

THE Divoll Kindergarten pupils are enjoying a picnic at Gamble Place to-day.

THE ROSE.

That night, in truth, she filled my heart's demands
For one sweet vision of perfected grace,
And as she moved in languorous mists of lace,
Holding a flower in her faultless hands,
Her beauty took me back to sunloved lands,
Where, o'er a marble altar's gilded base,
A pictured Virgin, with a roseleaf face,
Enshrined, as vestal queen of heaven stands.

And when I bent to take from her the rose,
She blushed as sweetly as the dawn illumes
The pallid orient sky it loves and wooes.

The rose has faded now, but in it glows
A pure and perfumed memory that blooms
Before me ever as a balm that soothes.

EDGAR EVERTSON.

THACKARA-SHERMAN.

The Latest Swell Wedding in Washington.

[Washington Special to Cin. Commercial, 6th.]

The marriage of Miss Eleanor M. Sherman, third daughter of the General, to Lieutenant Alex. M. Thackara, U. S. N., took place this evening, at 7 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents. It was a home-like and beautiful scene, solemnized in the presence of none but the immediate friends of the two families; also the President, the Secretaries of War and the Navy. Guests to the number of 500 attended the subsequent reception, filling the parlors and chambers with a distinguished throng, such as only the nation's capital can gather together. The bride is a winsome and vivacious young lady of twenty years, with rich coloring, and beautiful brown hair. The bridegroom, a gallant young officer, is a graduate of Annapolis in the class of 1869. He is of solid character, and fine appearance, the son of a prominent manufacturer and merchant of Chestnut street, Philadelphia. It is a Presbyterian family, but the son acquiesces quietly in the faith of his bride, and they were married according to the ritual of the Roman Catholic Church by the Rev. Father Boyd, pastor of St. Matthew's Church (Roman Catholic). The parlors and stairway were draped with the flags of the army and navy intermingled. A ship adorned with flowers stood on the mantel of the front parlor, reflected in the elegant mirror behind it. A bay window in front was tastefully adorned with flowers, and from its top was suspended a dainty marriage bell of white carnations and roses, with a tongue of pink carnations. A horseshoe of flowers hung on the door of the entrance, and an elaborate floral tribute, the gift of President and Mrs. Hayes, was on a stand in one corner of the middle parlor. The bride was dressed in a combination toilet of plain and brocaded white satin, trimmed with seed pearls on lace. Her jewels were a simple pearl set. Her bouquet was of orange flowers and lilies of the valley. She was attended by five bridesmaids dressed in white crepe de chine, with sleeves of lace and sashes of brocaded ribbon, each lady carrying a bouquet of her chosen flower.

Miss May Ewing, daughter of Hon. Thomas Ewing, a beautiful cousin of the bride, carried Bon Silene roses.

Miss Rachel Sherman, the General's fourth and youngest daughter, a debutante last season, carried French violets. Miss Marian Whipple, lovely daughter of Col. Whipple, of Gen. Sherman's staff, carried Jacqueminots; Miss Mamie Lackland, of St. Louis, pansies; Miss Addie Slack, of Washington, Marechal Neils. They were attended by five groomsmen, four of the navy and one of the army, in order as follows: Lieutenants Berry and Augur, United States Navy; Lieut. Cherry, United States Army; Lieutenants Bradbury and Coffin, United States Navy. The bridal party was preceded by little Miss Florence Audenreid, daughter of Col. Audenreid, of the General's staff, escorted by Master Tecumseh Sherman, the General's fourteen-year-old son.

Mrs. Sherman wore pearl-colored silk and satin; Mrs. Fitch, her daughter, lemon colored, combined with peacock blue. Miss Sherman, pink crepe de chine, with puffed front of pink satin.

All the officers of high rank in both the army and navy who are stationed at Washington were present, and many from other points. All were in full uniform, in compliment to the General and to the gallant bridegroom, who also was in uniform.

Noticeable in the throng of naval officers were Admiral Porter, Vice-Admiral Rowan, Rear-Admirals Sands and Almy, Commodore Wells, Pay-Director Cunningham, Captain Franklin and others; and of the army Generals Benet, Holabird, Dunn, Drum, Alvord, Surgeon-General Barnes, Colonels Audenreid, Poe and Bacon, of the General's Staff, and many more; the Chief Justice and Associate Justices Strong and Harlan, the Secretaries of State, of the Treasury and of the Interior, and the Attorney-General, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Senators Blaine, Carpenter, Kernan and Cameron, Representatives Anson G. McCook, Levi P. Morton, Thomas Ewing and Amos Townsend, George Bancroft and the British Minister and others of the Diplomatic Corps, were a few among the many distinguished guests, and were nearly all accompanied by ladies. In the absence of the French Minister from the city, Madame Outrey came in with Mr. and Mrs. Morton.

The presents were of great number and value. Gen. Grant sent a letter of greeting and congratulations. Gen. Sheridan, a tete-a-tete set in silver; Senator and Mrs. Blaine, a beautiful berry set and coffee spoons in silver and gold; Gen. A. G. McCook, an elaborate berry set of Olympian pattern; Gen. and Mrs. Audenreid an exquisite berry bowl of wrought silver, and Mr. and Mrs. Colket, of Philadelphia, the parents of Mrs. Audenreid, an ice pitcher of the same workmanship, one of the most elegant of all the gifts. Secretary and Mrs. Sherman gave an ice cream set in silver and gold, with berry forks and spoon. There was an indescribable wealth of silver ware, laces, embroidery, jewelry, fans, and articles vertu. Elaborate refreshments were served in the rear of the parlors.

At half-past 8 the bride and groom withdrew and prepared to start northward on the 9:40 train, in company with the parents, brother and sister of the groom. They will be absent about two weeks, and will then spend some time in the family of Gen. Sherman, till Lieut. Thackara receives his anticipated orders taking him away on a three years' cruise.

The Passions-Spiel.

[From the New York Herald.]

In the Ober-Ammergau "Passion Play" of the coming summer it is believed that the wood-carver, Josef Mayr, will take the part of Christ, and that Herod will be represented by the potter, Franz Paul Lang; Caiphas by the burgomaster, Johann Lang; St. John by the painter, Johann Zwink; St. Peter by the sculptor in wood, Jakob Heil; Pilate by Tobias Flunker, and Judas by Gregor Lechnov, both of whom are wood-carvers. A new election is required for the part of the Virgin Mary and of the high priest, Annas; the former representative of the latter is dead, while the Mary of 1870 is now married, and has thus become disqualified, according to the Ammergauer traditionary regulations for acting the prima donna of the drama. The costumes and scenery, which were formerly prepared in Munich, are being prepared this year in the place itself, as the Ammergauers found the Munich charges somewhat high. The theater in which the performances are to take place is almost finished. There will be ample room for almost 6,000 spectators, so that the theater will be twice or three times as large as the opera-houses of Berlin, Vienna and Paris. It is constructed like Richard Wagner's building at Beyreuth, on the amphitheatical model, and the greater portions of it will be roofless. The instrumental orchestra, as in the Beyreuth Festspielhaus, will be completely hidden from the spectators. It will consist of thirty performers. The stage is roofed and walled in on three sides. The choir or chorus, corresponding to the orchestra of the antique stage, will be seated like a church choir at the two sides of the stage, and will be visible to the spectators. Immense rooms have been built at the rear of the stage for the preservation of the costly costumes and the splendid decorations, and the dressing-rooms are also placed here. There is to be some difference in the scale of prices. A hundred rows of wooden benches, each to contain sixty persons, will be the cheapest; the upper rows will be dearer and more comfortable for the sitter. The price of a seat will run from one mark to eight marks. The new building has already cost the parish no less than 40,000 marks out of its own funds, and the costumes, decorations and other necessary expenses are estimated at 65,000 marks. The first performance will take place on Whit-Monday, the 17th of May. It will be repeated every Sunday and festival (with some few exceptions) until the end of September. There will thus be twenty-three performances in all. The representation will begin each day at 8 o'clock in the morning and end at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The best way to go thither is to make straight for Munich, and then take the railway through Starnberg and Weilhein to Murnau. At Murnau the tourist will find abundant opportunities for convevance. Ammergau has the means for entertaining an immense number of guests, but it will be advisable to telegraph beforehand from Munich or elsewhere and await a reply, of course paying for the return telegram. A visit to the Passion Play, quite apart from the unique marvel and performance and its rare occurrence in any man's lifetime, has the additional advantage of offering the tourist a number of noble excursions in fresh mountain air amid splendid scenery.

ANOTHER IMPOSTOR.

The Late Baron de Maincy Only a Hair-Dresser.

[From the New York Tribune.]

A man died in destitute circumstances in the German Hospital in Seventy-seventh street on March 12, under the name of Dr. Hector Carlos, Baron de Maincy. He came to America from Europe in 1865, and was successful in making acquaintances in New York society. At that time he was believed to be wealthy, but his circumstances becoming reduced, he became a teacher of modern languages, which was his principal occupation to the time of his death. During his final illness several of his wealthy acquaintances, who did not forget him, paid his expenses at the hospital, and after death attended to his burial, his funeral taking place in the Reformed Church in West Thirty-fourth street.

With the burial the matter seemed to end for the time being, though the stories of his past life were discussed by his friends. It was said that he was born in Treves, in Rhenish Prussia, and at an early age inherited a large fortune on the death of his father. After being graduated at a German university he lived in Paris, where his name and manners secured his admission into good society, and it was said that he had held the office of Censor of the Press in Paris. Having offended Napoleon III. by allowing a paper to publish certain articles, he fled to America. Since the death of Dr. Carlos a woman named Mrs. Haase, who has been employed as dressmaker in several wealthy families in this city, called at the German Hospital, and, claiming to be the widow of the deceased man, whose real name, she affirmed, was Charles Haase, and who had been a hair-dresser, instead of a baron, asked that the name Hector Carlos be stricken out of the burial certificate, and "Charles Haase" substituted. She urged as her reason for this that she wished to obtain an inheritance from her own relatives in France, in order to secure which it was necessary to have an official registry of her husband's death. The physician at the hospital could not comply with Mrs. Haase's request without legal authority, so Mrs. Haase secured the services of Ingersoll Lockwood as counsel, and the case will be brought before Judge Lawrence to-day on a writ of mandamus. Mrs. Haase alleges that Carlos was married to several other women besides herself, and that he moved under the name of "Horace Charles d' Armet de Fouger," in addition to the ones already given. She will produce as a witness a man named Leopold Gerbes, a cigar manufacturer, of No. 35 Stanton street, who claims to have known Haase in Detmold, Prussia, and to have recognized him in Dr. Hector Carlos, to whom he even forwarded letters addressed to Charles Haase.

For some three or four months previous to the death of Dr. Carlos he lived in the house of Charles E. Sprague, at No. 316 West Twenty-eighth street. After his death Mr. Sprague opened the trunks which had belonged to the doctor with the intention of finding out the proper person to take charge of his effects. In his investigations therein he came across letters addressed to Carlos, Haase and Fouger, and hence concluded that the alleged baron was an impostor. These letters he delivered to Mr. Lockwood, counsel of Mrs. Haase. Mr. Lockwood told a Tribune reporter yesterday that as no one would oppose Mrs. Haase, a mandamus would almost certainly be granted. Many of the man's old friends do not believe that he was an impostor.

Perils of European Travel.

[From the New York Herald.]

The season of summer travel in Europe begins with the murder of a passenger in a first-class carriage on a French railway. Exciting incidents of this kind have not been uncommon either in England or on the Continent in past years, but no effectual steps have ever been taken to guard against them. On most of the French lines a system of alarm signals exists which perhaps would be of more use than it has ever yet been were it not so contrived that no passenger can practically make use of it except with the good will and assistance of everybody else in the carriage. It will be remembered that an assault of this sort was made last year in an Italian railway train on an American gentleman traveling with his wife, in which the lady courageously but unsuccessfully aided her husband to resist the assailants, and it will be well for Americans about visiting Europe to bear it in mind that they must look out for themselves on such occasions.

UNDER THE GALLOWS.

Cove Bennett Describes a Man's Feelings Under Death Sentence.

[From the New York Sun, 5th.]

Covert D. Bennett delivered a lecture last evening in the Academy of Music, in Jersey City, in the form of a narrative of his experiences during the eighteen months that he was confined in the Hudson County Jail charged with the murder of Policeman Richard H. Smith. When it was announced that he had chosen that subject and intended to make his first appearance in Jersey City, considerable astonishment and indignation were expressed by the residents of that city. Threats were made that if he attempted to carry out his design he would be roughly treated, and would be driven from the stage. The history of the crime for which he had been tried was so fresh in the public mind, and the prejudices which it created were so intense, that many persons were deterred from attending the lecture last evening from apprehensions that it would result in a disturbance. Contrary to general expectation, however, the affair passed off without any scenes of violence or disorderly conduct. When the lecturer appeared on the stage it was twenty-five minutes to 9 o'clock. He stood in front of a reading stand, on which he spread his manuscript. His manner was nervous, but his delivery was good, though in many instances his articulation was too rapid to be distinct. His audience listened to him in respectful silence. There was no effort made to interrupt his performance, nor was there any applause until its conclusion. The lecture would occupy about four columns of the Sun.

He describes his sensations during the trial, through the summing up and listening to the Judge's charge. "Waiting for the verdict," he says, "I felt sure of an acquittal, and within myself was jubilant in anticipation of once more being able to walk abroad as other men. I was in a reverie, thinking of this and fancying the joys and pleasures which within so short a time would be mine, when the arrival of a court officer to take me to the bar broke in upon this vein of thought. Waiting, I scanned the face of each juror as he filed in to his place, also the face of the Judge. Had my conviction that I was to be acquitted not been so strong, the sight of three of the jurymen in tears would have told me that one of us at least [Mrs. Smith or himself] was condemned.

"As a thunder clap came the words from the foreman's lips: 'Guilty!' Who can fully describe my feelings? I cannot.

"A feeling of unutterable dread came over me, as if a mighty load had been placed upon my shoulders and was bearing me to the very earth. I was dumbfounded. While in that state I was taken back to the jail as if in a dream, and there, in the privacy of my cell, I became a thoughtful human being as the extent of my misery and peril gradually unfolded themselves in all their terrible reality before me."

He depicts at much length his sensations during the nights and days of the next few weeks. He refers to the ignominy of the death to which he had been sentenced as it would affect his mother and only sister. "I saw my mother's sweet face, so calm and gentle," he says, "looking, oh! so grieved, so pained, so sad. My very heart seemed bursting as I thought of her; and my sister, too, her sweet, innocent face, in all its girlish insouciance and beauty, would rise up before me pleadingly, with great tears welling in her eyes, and pity and woe so plaintively expressed on her countenance, that the thought that she, an orphan, fatherless, motherless, was to lose her brother, and by such an ignominious death, was too much. The very thought of it was worse even than the dread of the gallows."

Further along, referring to Mrs. Smith and his knowledge of her absolute innocence of the murder, he said: "Remorse would at this moment become so strong that I felt that if any sacrifice on my part would result in the saving of her life I would willingly endure it. * * * Once, indeed, was I so worked upon that in the middle of the night, and though sound asleep, I sprang from the bed, and did not wake until the watchman touched me, when I found myself in the middle of the floor. The watchman was white as death, and told me that I cried out, 'Oh, no! no! no!' And well I might, for in my sleep I had dreamed that waking I saw in a coffin by my side Mrs. Smith, while above her was a scaffold in all its hideous ghastliness. On the other side of the coffin was a thin, shadowy presence that, pointing its finger down into the coffin, exclaimed, 'You are the cause of this!'"

He passed through many alternations of hope and despair, as he describes them, until the time set for the execution approached. "It may seem incredible," he says, "to me even now it seems singular, as my memory has brought it rather indistinctly to my mind; yet it is true that within a week of the time appointed for my execution I became so thoroughly resigned that the thought of death itself had no horror. Not that I did not feel, in all its fulness, the awfulness of the death to which I was doomed and the terrible stain that it would forever leave upon my name. All this I fully (how fully I can never find words to express) felt, but the calm that came upon me was the calmness of resignation born of that entire acceptance and belief in the Supreme Power that governs all, who, if He so willed that I should suffer for this crime, of which I was guiltless, did it for a purpose that, however inscrutable to me, was, doubtless, to His omniscience, all sufficient."

A CONNECTICUT GIRL.

The Way a "Horrid Old Man" Tried to Avoid a Breach of Promise Suit.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

It seems to be pretty difficult to scare off a Connecticut girl when she has once made arrangements to have a wedding come off. The local papers in a rather uneventful portion of that State tell the story of a young woman of twenty-one who had engaged to marry an old man of sixty-three. After making a memorandum of the great difference in the ages it is probably unnecessary to say that the old fellow is rich; that was a part of the fascination with which he captured the young woman. Matters went on very smoothly for a time, until the old man began to suspect that he had rather not marry, or at least that he might not want to marry the particular young woman who was so dearly in love with him to all appearances. This hideous man began in a most cruel fashion to take the conceit out of his young love. Calling as usual upon her, this malicious and patched up wretch made a comic show of himself by removing his wig, his teeth, and some other things made to order. This, greatly to the disgraceful man's delight, astounded the young woman, and for a time it looked as if she might regard it as desirable to seek a little further for a husband. It was only for a brief time, however, for her love soon rose superior to wigs and false teeth; it was anchored on solid rocks—such rocks as rich old men sometimes employ in tempting love. She declined to consider the engagement off merely because he was bald and toothless; his purse was robust and all that a young woman could desire. In vain he further sought to frighten her by setting his age up some twenty years more than she had suspected it could be; this she rather liked, under the circumstances. His patience finally wore out, and he broke off the engagement without permission from the other party. A breach of promise case is now occupying the attention of a Connecticut court which will be likely to furnish the concluding chapter to this story.

Barnum's Last Trick.

[New York Cor. Troy Times.]

Barnum, the possessor of the greatest and only show on earth worthy of the name, is making a great deal of money out of Zazel, the girl who is shot out of a cannon. It is the most popular feature of his show this year. The feat has the attraction of horror and is thrilling until you know that it is a trick. The cannon is an enormous one, apparently of metal, but really mostly of wood, and hangs about twenty feet from the ground. After playing and exercising herself among the trapezes hung around the roof of the building, Zazel, who is quite a good-looking girl, swings herself to the mouth of the cannon and lets herself down into it, disappearing from sight altogether. The audience is requested to keep quiet, in order that the man with the torch may hear Zazel's signal to fire. A death-like stillness soon prevails. Now a faint cry is heard, and with a bang and flash the cannon goes off, while at the same time Zazel is seen flying through the air from one side of the building to the other, landing in a net spread for the purpose. The feat is somewhat similar to that of the man who last year at our aquarium used to catch a cannon ball fired out of a real cannon. In both cases I have been assured that the powder has no part in propelling the object—girl or ball; this is effected by a strong spring, which is let off a fraction of a second before the powder is fired. Probably the action of the spring fires the powder. At any rate the powder does not propel the girl, or there would be danger of serious accidents. In London a few months ago the powder did not ignite when it should have done so, being damp, but Zazel went flying through the air all the same, which exposed the trick. Since Zazel's departure from London an imitator of hers came to grief by the breaking of the net into which she fell, and Parliament has forbidden the trick.

Col. Scott's Successor.

[From the Philadelphia North American, 3d.]

Thirty years ago George B. Roberts, then sitting at his desk in a surveyor's office, and serving the Pennsylvania Railroad as a rodman, is reported to have said that he had rather be President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company than of the United States. In little more than a month he will attain his ambition, for his succession is almost absolutely certain. He has been close beside Col. Scott for many years. He first entered the service of the company five months later than Col. Scott, as rodman in the engineer corps. During the summer following his accession to the road, in March, 1851, he became assistant engineer in charge of the division on the summit that included the great tunnel. In 1852, in the fall, he left the Pennsylvania to become assistant engineer to the Philadelphia and Erie, and during the ten years that followed he was actively employed in building railroads. He was an engineer on the North Pennsylvania, which was open in 1855, and on the Northwestern. On the Allentown, the Mahanoy and Broad Mountain, and the West Jersey, he was chief engineer, and filled that office when they were completed. In 1862, on May 28, he was called to the position of assistant to the President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, on account of his engineering skill and ability as an administrative officer. Seven years later, on May 3, 1869, he was made Fourth Vice-President, and March 26, 1873, Second Vice-President. When Col. Scott was elected President, June 3, 1874, Mr. Roberts succeeded him as First Vice-President, and during Col. Scott's absence in Europe for a year and a half he was acting President. He has for many years occupied a prominent position in the boards of roads controlled by the Pennsylvania, and, as has been stated above, has already succeeded Col. Scott in most of the Western boards.

They Met and Parted.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

"Now, then," says tramp No. 1 to No. 2, as they tramped into Montcalm street from Woodward avenue the other day, "here is the game, you walk down the street and ring the bell of some house; when the lady answers you tell her that you haven't had anything to eat for three days. If she says she don't care, tell her that you are desperate and ready to commit any crime. If she starts to slam the door on you, hold it open with your foot and roll your eyes and look savage. I'll arrive just about then, and I'll take you by the neck, slam you around and pitch you out of the yard. I am the lady's protector and the hero of the hour, you see. I'll be very modest and claw off, but I'll tell her I'm a stranger and need a quarter to buy food. She'll hand it over, and I'll join you around the corner and divide. See?"

"Magnificent!" replied No. 2. "You ought to be in the United States Senate! Well, here I go."

He passed down the street and selected a house, and the programme was carefully followed until he reached the point where he said he was desperate. At that instant the hall door was pulled wide open and a six-foot husband shot out with his right hand and knocked No. 2 clear off the lower step. No. 1 was just rushing in, and six-footer thought he might as well kill two birds with one stone, so he gave him one on the jaw, and, when tired of walking around on their prostrate bodies, he flung them over the fence. The tramps limped down to the corner, looked at each other in deep disgust and then separated forever.

A. T. Stewart's Remains.

[New York Special to Chicago Times.]

The mortuary chapel at Garden City, in which were to have reposed the ashes of A. T. Stewart, will be completed this month. It is reported that the mystery surrounding the stealing of the body is to be finally cleared away in a few days. The statement is made that last January eight persons were indicted by the grand jury on the testimony of an accomplice, and that this accomplice opened negotiations through Dr. Sidney A. Carney, of No. 112 West Thirty-fourth street. It is said that through this accomplice the names and location of the grave-robbers were made known to the District Attorney, and that detectives kept them under surveillance for months. The report says that negotiations with the eight men engaged in stealing the body were carried on by Dr. Carney and Assistant District Attorney Herring, but that the negotiations were brought to a sudden stand-still by the death of the accomplice, whose testimony was necessary to complete the affair, and that since then the eight men have been constantly watched, and that Assistant District Attorney Herring has been in Arizona six weeks negotiating with parties connected with the affair.

The Vanderbilts in a Novel.

[From the Springfield Republican.]

The Vanderbilt will case in all its nauseousness is spread out in a novel entitled "The Verdendorps," published by Charles M. Hertig, Chicago, which purports to be written by Basil Verdendorp. The disguise is the thinnest possible; old Vanderbilt and his successor, the second wife with her peculiar relations to the son, Rev. Dr. Deems, the lawyers and the Judges—all the hideous corruption of social and family life, the base subserviency of courts, religion and even journalism are depicted with rude literalness. In Basil Verdendorp, the narrator, we have a highly ideal presentation of Cornelius Vanderbilt the younger as a virtuous and abused person. The denouement differs slightly from the facts in making Basil shoot Richard C. Verdendorp dead, and afterward acquitting him of the murder, while the Verdendorp property is all broken up and pays about seventy-five cents on a dollar. The book has no literary merit, but it is a curious libel—according to the legal interpretation of libel.

BERLIN has just learned from a report of the Polytechnic Society's latest meeting that within its walls reposes a treasure of almost fabulous value, the very existence of which had been hitherto unsuspected. A member of the society is the enviable owner of the largest sapphire in the world—a stone weighing nearly fifteen ounces. Pure sapphires of good color hold so high a rank in the gem market that, were this gigantic jewel of the first water, it would be worth no less than £3,200,000. It is, however, not absolutely free from impurities—a fact which materially diminishes its practical value, but enormous bids for it, made at different times by German princes and wealthy mineralogists, have been invariably rejected by its proprietor, who has constituted it an heirloom and confided it, in deposit, to the custody of the State judicial authorities. A sapphire weighing nearly a pound may fairly claim to rank as among the wonders of the world.

FAMOUS VESSELS.

A Ship Captain's Recollections of Remarkable Sailors.

[From the American Ship.]

While we rarely find a ship that has had a long term of service, it is nevertheless true that many sea-going vessels survive until they become historical mementoes of deep interest, not only to navigators, but because of their associations with notable men or events. Searching for facts, a leading merchant of this city in the China trade referred the editor of the American Ship to a venerable retired shipmaster, Capt. F. C. Sanford, of Nantucket, Mass., who proved to be a most valuable repository of facts pertaining to what he calls "old sea kings," and maritime affairs in general. In answering the inquiry, "What becomes of old ships?" he first brings to mind the stampede from the Atlantic States to California at the beginning of the gold discoveries—how thousands of vessels entered the Golden Horn with emigrants, never to return. He says: During the year 1850 more than 1,000 ships were observed in the Bay of San Francisco, a large portion of which never passed without its gates. Many of these had a history worthy of remembrance. There were some of the London, Liverpool and French liners, comprising the famous New York and Havre packet, and renowned China ships, with hundreds of others, smaller, but of equal interest, taken from the whale fishery, as well as many of less note. There was the Cadmus, which brought the patriot Lafayette to this country in 1825, as also a host of others; Gen. Jackson and Balance, the two ships taken by James De Wolf's privateer True-blooded Yankee, in the war of 1814. The latter ship was near 100 years old. They were built in Calcutta, of teak timber, and the Balance had the same masts in her which were put into her in Calcutta almost a century before. She was named Balance to balance a ship lost by De Wolf a short time before, taken by a British cruiser. There were numbers of old whalers, English and American, for example the celebrated Lady Amherst, an English whaler of repute, belonging to Samuel Enderby & Sons, of London, which in six consecutive voyages, with an average time of thirty-four months to each, obtained 16,000 barrels of sperm oil—a catch never equaled by any ship from our own ports. There also entered the port Thomas H. Perkins' splendid clipper Nile, of Boston, from China, laden with silks, teas and frankincence (sandal-wood), seeking a market first among the Peruvians. There were also the Mayflower, Olympia, Martha, a London packet from Nantucket in 1809; Montano, a French packet from New York in 1824; Henry Astor, one of Mr. John Jacob Astor's famed Northwest fur traders to China, early in this century; Ellen Brooks, Deucalion, Hibernia, Ontario and New York, of the Liverpool packets; Nantic, Goodhue & Co.'s China ship from New York, which was moved up into the center of the city, and was for a long time a famous hotel; Friendship, of Salem, when she was cut off by the Malays, and for which our Government sent out the frigate Potomac, under Commodore Downes, in 1832, to chastise the natives; Isaac Hicks, for years a Liverpool packet under charge of the late Josiah Macy, of New York; Morrison, built by Stephen Girard, of Philadelphia, and one of his tea-ships from that port, but more recently the property of Spofford & Tileston, of New York; Palladium, one of Thorndike's ships, of Boston, with scores of others, thrown aside, the rage for the pursuit of gold being so great, everything else was deemed, and became, worthless.

In the "stone blockade" of Charleston, S. C., in 1862, there were sunk a fleet of ships formerly engaged in the whaling business, and, before that, many of them in the European trade for the various commercial centers of our country, and not a few in the China trade. Among these were the Kensington, Leonidas, Amazon, Cossack, Courier, Frances Henrietta, Rebecca Simms (once a China ship belonging to Woodruff Simms, of Philadelphia), and lastly the Herald, almost a century old, and once the pride of Boston. Then the Anglo-rebel privateers made fearful havoc.

Among the interesting old ships was the Barclay, built in 1796, for William Roth & Sons, by George Claghorn—the same who built the frigate Constitution (Old Ironsides). The Barclay was gallantly cut out of Callao, from under the guns of the Spanish fortifications, in 1813, by Commodore David Porter, then in the United States frigate Essex, with our heroic Farragut, at that time a midshipman under his command. After an eventful career she was broken up at New Bedford in 1864; also, the ship Canada, famous in her day, when in the Liverpool trade, making her passage from New York in from 13 to 16 days, when commanded by Capt. Seth G. Macy, of Hudson, and delivering Gen. Jackson's messages in Liverpool as promptly as the steamers do others in these days. This ship was seized by the Brazilian Government while ashore near Pernambuco in 1856, and was since paid for, every dollar.

Large numbers of noted old ships, when the requirements of commerce demand those of larger size for transportation of cotton, grain and other merchandise, were transferred to the whaling business, and have since laid their keels in some of the numerous groups of the Pacific seas, or been crushed in the ice of the Arctic floes. Among these we have in mind the Boston China ship Houqua, long commanded by Josiah Sturgis. This ship was driven ashore and wrecked in the Okotsk Sea in 1851. Then there was the Essex, of Nantucket, stove by a huge whale in the Pacific Ocean in November, 1820. A similar adventure befell the ship Harmony (also of Nantucket), Capt. Abel Rawson, late in the last century, which had a whale breach out of the sea in the night across the deck, sinking the ship in a few minutes. The ship Ann Alexander, of New Bedford, was destroyed on the coast of Peru in August, 1851, in a manner similar to the Essex. The whole affair was noticed at the time by the London Punch, in verse.

There is a ship now sailing from Holland, or was up to a recent date, built in 1568. She is called the Commissaries des Koning von der Heine, and, if still in existence, must be upward of 300 years old. Coming nearer home, there are many other old ships whose names are endeared to merchants of a former day now in retirement, among them the Samuel Russell and Oriental, which belonged to the Messrs. Low, of New York; the Natchez, owned by Messrs. Howland & Aspinwall, which made the passage from Hong Kong, China, to New York, in command of Robert S. Waterman, in seventy-seven days, a feat never matched by any craft before or since.

The State Sunday School Convention.

The Executive Committee of the Missouri State Sunday School Convention has issued the following to the Sabbath school workers throughout Missouri: The fifteenth annual meeting of the Missouri State Sunday School Convention will be held at St. Joseph, Mo., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 25, 26 and 27, 1880. This will be a mass convention. Every Sabbath school worker in the State is invited to be present and participate in the exercises. Ample arrangements will be made by the citizens of St. Joseph to entertain all who attend. A programme of topics for discussion and also containing information concerning the reduction of fares on railroads, etc., will be sent out early in May. Watch for it, read it, and come. There are several reasons why this should be the largest Sabbath school convention ever held in the State, namely: 1. This is the centenary of Sabbath school work in the world. A review of the past should give a powerful impulse to the future. The centenary celebration to be held in London about the same time (June 28) should also greatly stimulate and encourage us. 2. This is the first year of the second course of international lessons. The seven years' course just completed has proved the plan a wise one. It has unified the study of the Bible and sent broadcast over the world a flood of light concerning the word of God and its life-giving teachings. 3. A large attendance at the State Convention will secure better work in the various districts of the State, and this will enable us to make out a better report for the International Convention soon to be held at Toronto, Canada. We ask that all who feel an interest in the Christian nurture of the rising generation do earnestly pray that the favor and blessing of Almighty God may rest upon our coming convention.

THE DEMOCRATIC WIGWAM.

The Building for the Moberly Convention Nearly Completed—What it Will Be.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, May 7.—The Democratic Wigwam will be completed this week. The house is large enough to contain any audience likely to assemble, and contains far more room than any hall outside of St. Louis in the State. The building is 120 feet long and 64 feet wide. Height in center 33 feet. There will be 34 windows, eleven on one side and six in each end—size of windows, 5.25x2.5 feet, glass 12x14 inches. Two large doors will admit the delegates and auditors. The floor for the delegates will be, if the platform is erected in the end, 105x40 feet, neatly laid with flooring plank, to be seated with comfortable chairs. The platform will be 17x8 feet, raised 2 feet 6 inches above the floor. On either side of the main hall is a space 12 feet, having raised seats and capable of seating 1,500 spectators. The main floor, allowing for all necessary aisles and passways, will easily accommodate 1,000 persons. The light and ventilation will be as perfect as could be desired. There is a proposition now to erect the platform on the east side and take up a part of the space appropriated to spectators. This would leave the delegates' hall 120x40 feet, would bring the main body of delegates and spectators nearer to the chairman and would leave most of the audience facing the platform instead of looking sidewise at the president. In any event, however, the convention and the spectators are well provided for, and everything will be conducted decently and in order so far as the provision for it by our citizens is concerned. The building is surmounted by a tall flag-staff from which will float a fine U. S. flag.

Other Conventions to be Held at Moberly.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, MO., May 7.—Col. John F. Rucker, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of the Eleventh Congressional District, has called a meeting of the committee to be held at Moberly on Wednesday, May 26, the day of the meeting of the State Convention. Though not in the Eleventh District, Moberly is selected as the meeting-place of the committee because of its accessibility by railroad, and for the additional reason that the members of the committee will desire to attend the State Delegate Convention.

Moberly is, it seems, the place for the meeting of central committees. On the day the Democratic State Convention holds its session here (May 26), the Democratic Central Committee of the Seventh Senatorial District and the Democratic Central Committee of the Tenth Congressional District all hold their meetings in this city to appoint the times and places of holding their several nominating conventions.

Comingo's Claims.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, MO., May 7.—Hon. A. Comingo, candidate for Congress in the Eighth District, refuses to submit his claims to or be governed by the Routt Congressional committee. He says the extraordinary short time that is to intervene between this and the holding of the proposed primaries precludes the possibility of anything like a thorough canvass of the district, and it appears as if such may have been the purpose of those who assumed authority to determine the day on which they shall be held.

Cole County Immigration.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., May 7.—The following call has been issued: There will be a meeting of the Cole County Immigration Society at the Court-house in this city on Monday, May 17, at 1 o'clock p. m. Citizens interested in promoting the immigration interests of the county are requested to be present and co-operate.

H. CLAY EWING,
President Cole Co. Immigration Society.
N. C. BURCH,
Secretary.

Temperance Convention.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHAGE, MO., May 7.—There will be a District Temperance Convention at Peirce City, Mo., composed of representatives of the various temperance organizations of Southwest Missouri, on Tuesday, May 20th, for the purpose of obtaining and furthering a more systematic and perfect union of the vast strength of the cause scattered over this fruitful and prosperous region.

Laclede County Democrats.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEBANON, MO., May 7.—A mass convention of the Democracy of Laclede county will be held at the Court-house in Lebanon at 1 o'clock p. m. on Saturday, May 15 for the purpose of selecting five delegates to the Democratic State Convention and selecting a county committee, consisting of one from each township.

Missouri Greenbackers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, May 6.—A mass convention of the Greenback Labor party of Randolph county will be held in Moberly to-morrow, for the purpose of selecting five delegates to attend a convention to be held in Chillicothe, Mo., May 20, to select delegates to the National Convention to be held at Chicago on the 9th of June.

AMUSEMENTS.

Three more performances by Nick Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Company and the Spanish Students will be given at the Theatre Comique. The houses this week have been uniformly good.

Pope's Theater will be closed next week. At the Olympic "Dr. Clyde," an adaptation of L'Arronge's "Dr. Klaus," and at the Opera-house Joe Emmet in "Fritz in Ireland" are announced for Monday next.

Frank Mayo in "Davy Crockett," at the Grand Opera-house. Barlow, Wilson, Primrose and West's minstrel troupe, at the Olympic, and "Oaken Hearts," with Fred B. Warde and Dickie Lingard, are the attractions at the theaters.

The first grand picnic will be given by Courts Lincoln and Benton at Koerner's (formerly Staehlin's) Garden next Sunday, commencing at 2 p. m. Admission, 25 cents. There will be music, fat men's race, pole-climbing, pig-hunting, games and sports of all kinds.

Pickwick Theater opens next week. The Nathal Opera Company will produce "The Grand Duchess" with a trained chorus of twenty-four voices. Miss Charlotte Hutchings will personate the Duchess of Gerolstein. Miss Rena Murilli and Mrs. Agnes Storr Vedder, alternate as Wanda; Mr. Geo. S. Weeks as Fritz; W. Luard, Prince Paul; L. Nathal, General Bum, and M. F. Freer, Nepomuc.

RIVER NEWS.

PACKET for New Orleans, the W. P. Halliday, to-morrow.

KOUNTZ Liner for New Orleans to-morrow: The J. B. M. Kehlor.

THE commodious E. H. Durfee leaves this evening for Kansas City.

CAPT. JAMES GOOD, of the Valley Barge Line, has returned from the Ohio.

MANION shipped some steamboat machinery yesterday for a boat at Omaha.

IRONTON, O., May 5.—The Etna departed for St. Louis with 6,000 brls salt at 7 a. m.

CAPT. E. J. ANDERSON commands the transfer steamer Milwaukee, which left to-day for Sioux City.

CAPT. JAMES BEST backs out the elegant Belle La Crosse for St. Paul to-morrow evening.

THE John Means is lying idle at the bank just now, and Captain John A. Blythe rusticates at home on Benton street.

THE superb and graceful Golden Eagle, Captain Asbury, will leave this afternoon for Keokuk and way landings.

THE Libbie Conger, Capt. Boland, for St. Paul to-morrow evening. Loading at the Diamond Jo. wharfboat.

WARD & BRADY, north levee, have received the promised pair of complete engines from Sioux City. They are for sale.

PITTSBURG, 5: Carrier leaves for Omaha direct Thursday. Montana loads in turn after Decotah. Monongahela 5½ feet and falling.

CAPT. TOM P. LEATHERS, John Cowdon, and the delegation from Memphis to inspect the Barataria canal route left last Saturday, by Harvey's Canal, to perform that service.

ROCK ISLAND, 5: The Arkansas, with six barges in tow, arrived from below at noon yesterday. The Maggie Reaney helped her over the rapids. The Josie, Capt. J. B. Davis in command, passed up last night. The Northwestern and Libbie Conger are due down.

THE popular packet Cherokee is getting in her cargo and will leave this evening for Cincinnati, Louisville, Pittsburg and all way landings. She has good passenger accommodations, and is a remarkably successful boat. Captain George Wolf commands and W. H. Keyt is clerk.

CINCINNATI Enquirer, 6: Captain John S. Patterson is here from St. Louis. He has resigned command of the J. B. M. Kehlor. Engineer Asa Reed, of the J. B. M. Kehlor, passed through the city yesterday to Ripley. He is about to remove his family to St. Louis. Capt. Jewett, Chief Engineer of the Mississippi River Snag-boat Squadron, says all the snag-boats are now laid up at Mound City, except the Octavia.

THE handsome steamer Dora arrived here, towed by the My Choice. The engines and boilers are ready for her, and Lawnin will exhibit his rapidity and skill in fashioning the Dora's cabin, various suits of rooms, nursery, bath-rooms, barber shop, kitchen, etc. Ed Lawler, builder of the hull, was in town yesterday. He feels justly satisfied with the hull. He has finished a barge, which is also being towed here.

EVANSVILLE, May 5.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Evansville and Tennessee River Packet Company, John Gilbert, W. G. Brown, D. J. Mackey, J. H. Fowler and Robert Honshell were elected directors for the ensuing year. John Gilbert was chosen president, and W. G. Brown secretary and treasurer. The directors ordered a new boat built for the Tennessee River trade. She will be 185 feet long, 35 feet beam, five feet hold, 16-inch cylinder, five-foot stroke, and will be completed October 1.

SIOUX CITY, May 4.—The C. K. Peck passed Brownsville, Neb., May 1, and with fair water should be here some time this week. The Fontenelle was at Cheyenne Agency May 1 on her way to this city. The river is still falling, and is now four inches lower than on Saturday. Capt. King, agent of the Peck Line at Yankton, wrote yesterday that the river there has fallen eight inches in forty-eight hours. Captain J. C. Barr has arrived at Bismarck as the representative of the Peck Line, carrying Government freight. The long expected Red Cloud touched at our levee at 8 a. m. Sunday, and after taking on supplies left in the afternoon for Benton.

MR. V. C. DENTZEL, of the N. O. States, makes the following synopsis of the Natchez's runs: "The Natchez left yesterday morning for the jetties with a large party on board, all of whom enjoyed themselves very much. Her time from Canal street to Port Eads Wharf was 5 hours and 12 minutes. Her time back was 7 hours and 50 minutes. She ran all day against a strong wind, which retarded her somewhat. She made 13 miles in 35 minutes, 16 miles in 47 minutes, 26 miles in 1 hour and 10 minutes, 28 miles in 1 hour and 24 minutes, 35 miles in 1 hour and 40 minutes, and 70 miles in 3 hours and 20 minutes. In a run up of 60 miles she was 4 hours and 10 minutes.

NEW BARGES.—Barmore will launch one next week for Haarstick & Co. He has one up in frame for Lowry & Co. ... latter will have one launched next week ... dison, 200 feet, 35 feet, 8 feet; has one bui... at Mason City, one at Murrayville, one at P... mouth, two at Madison City, two at Cincinnati, two at Mound City, two at Metropolis, and two at Jeffersonville. Schulenburg and Lucas have some barges building, and all these, and more, are for the St. Louis trade. If we had the information that as many steamboats as barges were being built for the St. Louis trade, it would be highly interesting, as foreshadowing employment for a large number of men and boys.

It appearing from the affidavit this day filed herein that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Missouri; wherefore, on motion of plaintiff by attorney, it is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against her, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between the plaintiff and the defendant, on the ground that the defendant, wholly disregarding her duties as the wife of the plaintiff, has been willfully absent from the plaintiff for more than two years last past; and unless she appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of June next, and, on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against her as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

A true copy from the record.

Witness my hand and seal of the Circuit Court City of St. Louis, this 17th day of February, 1880.

POST-DISPATCH,
111 North Fifth Street.

For North St. Louis.

The rapid growth of our circulation has induced us to establish a separate office of the POST-DISPATCH for North St. Louis.

Our North St. Louis branch is at the corner of Eleventh and Exchange streets, or 2124 North Eleventh.

Any failure or omission in the regular and prompt delivery of the POST-DISPATCH by carriers north of Cass avenue should be at once reported to the branch office.

We are doing our very best to enlarge and perfect our carrier system in North St. Louis, and have already established numerous new routes that became a necessity. But as nothing is perfect in the beginning we must beg our new friends and readers to have a little patience. Only a few days and the delivery of the paper by carriers shall be as perfect in Bremen as at the Court-house.

In the meantime all suggestions, orders for the paper, news items or advertisements, from the northern part of St. Louis, should be sent to our branch office, 2124 North Eleventh street.

AMUSEMENTS THIS EVENING.

THE St. Louis Fair Association will not undertake the management of the military tournament this year. The experience of last year was entirely sufficient.

BISHOP'S boom went down in the turbid political waters of Ohio yesterday, and not a spar is left floating to indicate the latitude and longitude of the disaster.

IT would seem that the spectacle of Cameron gibbets lining the thoroughfares of Pennsylvania no longer terrifies the small politicians of that intellectual State. This is almost surprising.

IT is thought that Hayes' veto of the small deficiency bill has effectually settled the proposed adjournment of Congress on the first of June. The session will run far into July and the dog days.

THE fire at Bradford, Pa., yesterday was more of a calamity than was at first supposed. A hundred oil wells and all their appointments were destroyed and hundreds of people have been reduced to want.

THE Republican primaries in Chicago will be held on Saturday evening. If John Logan's fever intermits sufficiently the Grant boom will undoubtedly secure some aid and sympathy. The wires have been adjusted.

A NOTICE has been served by the House Committee on Appropriations on the Board of Indian Commissioners that resignations are fashionable and in order. It is proposed to rid the country of this ancient and stupid fraud.

SEVEN Republican conventions were held in as many States yesterday, and the only consolation that the Grant boomers extracted was obtained from the one in this city, which was expressly called to oppose the third term. The smallness of the body was a source of comfort to the conspirators.

GRANT'S reception at Springfield last Wednesday was utterly devoid of enthusiasm. The coolness of his presence was similar to that which Charles Francis Adams creates in Eastern Massachusetts when he steps out upon his porch on a winter afternoon to examine the mercury in the thermometer.

SEVERAL hundred Republicans in Cincinnati publish their names in the Commercial with the remark that they are opposed to Gen. Grant for a third term. Few of them are politicians. The Commercial says that if an effort were made throughout the city the list could be increased to thousands. The Cincinnati Grant Club, composed of ward bummers, broken down political hacks and ex-office-holders, looks insignificant beside the Commercial's array of reputable names.

A REVENUE cutter has been ordered to proceed from San Francisco to the relief of Jim Bennett's yacht "Jeannette," which started out about a year ago to bring in the returns from the North Pole. This is in accordance with the established industry. The searcher goes forth this year and the searcher for the searcher sets sail the next. When Mr. Bennett laid out to advertise the world by his raid on the North Pole, we had a misgiving that the Government would be thrown in for a bill of expenses, and, sure enough, our sagacity has been vindicated again.

PLUNGED into hopeless bankruptcy, the Turkish Government is now staving off its creditors by resort to the Micawber system of financiering. Holders of claims, after months of delay, are given orders on provincial boards which are as moneyless as the extinct Mussulmans in the dusty tombs of Scutari. The thriftless and lazy Turk has made a complete and shameful failure in his attempt to conduct a government among modern nations. Ironclads and improved rifles are too much of a luxury for a people naturally nomadic and trained to a government of pure force and rapacity. The best thing that the Sultan could do would be to make an assignment for the benefit of his health and creditors. Mr. John Bull, owing to his personal interests, would not make a good assignee, but he could doubtless furnish one on short notice.

THE BATTLE'S CLOSE.

Of the 756 delegates that will constitute the Chicago Convention all are already elected except the following:

Nevada	6	Minnesota	10
Florida	8	Nebraska	6
Michigan	22	Dakota	2
West Virginia	10	Alabama	20
Illinois	42	Louisiana	16
Colorado	6
Total	148

Of the 608 delegates already elected the following will represent Grant's strength upon the assumption that the unit rule will not be broken—that is, that the votes of the Blaine minorities will be cast for Grant:

New York	70	Pennsylvania	58
Arizona	2	Arkansas	12
Georgia	6	Kentucky	24
Massachusetts	4	Missouri	30
South Carolina	14	Texas	16
Virginia	22	Tennessee	18
Mississippi	5	North Carolina	6
Total	287

It will require just 379 votes to nominate. Gen. Grant is to-day just ninety-two votes short. Can he gain them? Let us see.

The situation in a nutshell is that Grant must carry ninety-two of the last 148 delegates yet to be elected or he is beaten, even if the unit rule prevails—something most improbable.

He has no prospects whatever in Michigan (32), West Virginia (10), Minnesota (10) and Nebraska (6). These States are conceded to be against him. This just leaves 100 votes to draw from. Grant must receive 92 of these to have a bare majority. That is, he must get almost every vote from Illinois (42), Nevada (6), Florida (8), Dakota (2), Alabama (20), Louisiana (16) and Colorado (6).

He cannot do it. Grant is beaten. Even if he should get the solid vote of Illinois, he is sure to lose more than enough in Louisiana, Florida and Alabama, where Sherman's Treasury gang will control the party machinery.

We have given the figures as they are, without the slightest prejudice. We have given a favorable estimate of Grant's strength by assuming that the "unit" rule will be allowed to stand. But this is extremely improbable. It is almost certain that if the Grant men have not a positive and sincere majority of the convention the unit rule will be immediately set aside and delegates will vote as they please—vote their real convictions. But the very moment the unit rule falls at least seventy-five and probably one hundred votes will desert Grant from Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, Kentucky, Texas, etc., etc.

It is with the sincerest regret, and almost in the light of a Democratic calamity, that we repeat our previous belief that Grant cannot and will not be nominated at Chicago.

—And now our dispatches confirm the reported bolt in the Republican delegation of Pennsylvania. Manager McManus has informed Don Cameron that ten of the twelve Philadelphia delegates will not support Grant under any circumstances, and that if he undertakes to enforce the unit rule decree of the Harrisburg convention the whole delegation will be arrayed against him. Thus do we note everywhere the breaking up and wrecking of the once powerful boom.

BRADLAUGH.

Since the French potentate marched up a hill with his military following and then marched down again for cause, there has been no exhibition in politics as that afforded the world by Charles Bradlaugh, the English Radical. After striving for years to be elected to Parliament the great leveler succeeded in getting in on the recent ground swell. Now he deliberately unseats himself by refusing to take the oath of office on the ground that it implies a religious belief and binds one subscribing to it to the support of the monarchy. Bradlaugh is one of the few remarkable men among the lower orders of England. He is an infidel and a revolutionist, with intellect enough to make him formidable. His object in life is to tear down the churches, overturn the English monarchy and establish a liberal democratic government in its stead, modeled somewhat after the Commune. If England could be plunged into a revolution to-day he would turn up as the blood-thirsty Danton and Robespierre combined. He is a man of fine physique, with a skull-like face, over which the skin is drawn like parchment. His mouth is square cut, his eyes deep and full of intensity, and like all men of blood and war he affects white hats and white overcoats. He is a native of London, and when a young man was a devout Christian and a devoted teacher in a Sunday-school. A spirit of inquiry led him into a discussion with his pastor and eventually landed him on the shoals of Atheism. Driven from the paternal roof on account of this, he drifted into the army, where he served for a number of years. After returning to private life he followed mercantile pursuits, and mastered meanwhile the French, Spanish, German and Italian languages. Being a Red Republican in politics, he went upon the Continent and formed the acquaintance of most of the revolutionary leaders. He became a member of the Carbonari Society of Italy and the Grand Orient of France. Mazzini was one of his friends, and for years he has kept up close correspondence with Gambetta.

He began to make himself a disturber in England in connection with Odger, a Republican of the ultra type. His speeches against the Crown were always bitter and personal, and some of his encounters with the authorities were often fierce and bloody. He is the natural leader of the English sans-culottes, if such an element can be said to exist among the poor riff-raff who constitute the social scum, and who are evidences of the degradation and poverty which are the legitimate outgrowth of a system under which the rich grow perpetually richer and the poor grow forever poorer. Naturally he is a Free Lover, though his marital relations and private life are in accordance with the prescribed doctrine. He lives in comfortable quarters near St. John's Woods, London, and busies himself chiefly with editing a journal called the National Reformer, attending Socialistic meetings and lecturing before distressed females who seek a betterment of condition. He is a man of great oratorical gifts and his fine physique gives him command over men. He is outspoken and bitter in his animosity toward the Queen and the entire governmental system. Naturally aggressive, it is with the greatest difficulty that he can keep himself out of the clutches of the law. The borough of Northampton, from which he has just been chosen to Parliament, has always been the scene of his electoral struggles, and though beaten over and over again he publicly declared four years ago that he never intended to desist until the electors honored him with a seat. It is not likely that the House Committee, to which his case has been referred, will consent to his proposition to affirm instead of taking the customary oath, and Northampton may be called upon to enact the familiar farce of electing and re-electing her favorite without end. Bradlaugh is only about forty-eight years of age. He has twenty years of active life left in him, and the probabilities are that he will yet leave a red finger-mark on the pages of English history.

ABOUT the neatest anti-third term platform of the day is that adopted by the taffy-dealing Republicans of New Hampshire, to-wit:

That we congratulate Ulysses S. Grant, the most renowned and illustrious citizen of the republic, on his safe return from his tour of the world, and we fervently wish that the afternoon of his remarkable life may be made serene by exemption from strife and happy in the respect and affection of a gratified country, whose unity he did so much to preserve and whose great destiny he did more than any of his compatriots to advance.

This is a nice platform for some Democratic convention to work by. Suppose the Democrats of Missouri, when they assemble at Moberly, declare their love and admiration for Mr. Tilden, but express the hope that in view of his advanced years and infirmities he will be permitted to close his eventful and patriotic life in the composure and serenity of Gramercy Park, unvexed by the cares of office and the importunities of politicians. A resolution of this kind, if worded so as to bring out the unselfish and patriotic services of Mr. T. in behalf of the preservation of the Republic, and at the same time avoid specific reference to his paralyzed arm and his indifferent eye, would commend itself to the gentle senses of the Sage and be almost as satisfactorily received as a solidly instructed delegation.

WHEN it comes to drawing a platform to please everybody, the Republican Yankees of New Hampshire sweep the stakes. They solemnly affirmed yesterday that there never was a financier of such grand capacity as John Sherman; that there never was a renowned and illustrious traveler who needed so much rest as Grant, or who was more deserving of a serene and graceful decline into the grave free from the cares of official life; and that while opposed to expressing any preference, they couldn't help remarking that James G. Blaine, of Maine, was about the proper person to take charge of the country and give out the 80,000 offices around which the hearts of twenty millions of patriots affectionately cluster. If Mr. Washburne had been complimented on his success as a lecturer and a resolution of condolence had been adopted touching the disappearance of Reformer Bristow from the field of politics, the platform would have been a model of its kind.

FOR years the country has vainly endeavored to discover the miscreant who struck Billy Paterson. Nobody seems to know how William came by his mournful peepers, but we are prepared to tell what it was that struck the town of Paterson, in the State of New Jersey, the other day. It was not a Missouri zephyr. It was a circus. Two weeks ago Mr. Forepaugh hung his illuminated posters on the fences of Paterson. From that moment the people did little else than lie on their stomachs in front of the gaudy panorama and talk circus. The show reached the town last Friday. All night long people arrived in the city from a distance, some of them coming thirty miles. They found the citizens awake and ready to join them in celebrating the event. When the circus arrived and the gorgeous caravan began to parade the streets the whole town went mad. The fever reached the operatives in the mills. Most of the mill owners had the good sense to close their establishments. Some of the factories which undertook to run were compelled to suspend when the procession passed. A foreman in one of the mills tried to keep the hands in by locking the gate, but the gate was opened in response to a threat on the part of the hands that they would throw him into the mill-race if he persisted in trying to detain them. One man who was refused leave to go jumped out of a window and cut his leg on the glass. He spent the morning in getting his leg sewed up, and when he went back to the mill in the afternoon he was discharged. Such excitement among the mill-hands was never before known. And the worst of the whole business was the wind was so high the circus people couldn't put up their tents and there was no show. The sorrow which brooded over Paterson and the grief which invaded the people who had come thirty miles to hear the verdant-antique jokes of the pre-historic clown can better be imagined than described.

THE suicide of young Short near Cincinnati the other day goes to prove that there are many things in this world preferable to money. The young man in question was the inheritor of more than a million of dollars in property. His family was connected with that of President Harrison and he lived within the sacred precincts of the great warrior-statesman's tomb near North Bend. But nature had not been kind to the young man. It made him six feet and a half in length and gave him very little more diameter than a churn-dasher. He was the most thoroughly elongated specimen of humanity in the West. To be the longest man in the country was bad enough but to have all this supplemented with the paradoxical name of Short was indeed the irony of fate. The young man naturally grew misanthropic after he discovered the heights which he had attained. He hated women and shunned their society, for no giddy creature of the simple sex could be introduced to Mr. Short without looking up into his giraffe-like eyes and snickering. If she didn't snicker she embraced the first opportunity to remark that the young man ought to be named Long. The young man heard this stupid play on his name so much that he came to hate the world and every species of joker. The long and short of it was that he deliberately took his own life. He now sleeps in a trench-like grave, unmindful of his wealth and far removed from the impious wretch who, despite the sadness of his taking off, will insist, perhaps, in saying that, though taller than the average of men, the youth was not long for this world.

THE telephone lines of the city seem to be suffering from a severe attack of influenza or some other kindred ailment incident to the sudden changes of vernal weather. After establishing connection with the central office you put the dice box to your ear and call out to know if the party wanted is there. First comes a fluttering sound that goes straight through your ear and makes you feel as if a fly had suddenly penetrated your skull; then comes a wheezing noise as if a swarm of bumble-bees had settled on the wires. Probably a voice may come bubbling along the line after a while, but in vain you try to catch a syllable of what is being said. After frantically calling out that you cannot hear a continental word you tell the fellow at the other end to go to the place from which Dives looked up and saw Lazarus reposing in Abraham's bosom. Such is about the daily experience of every man who is afflicted with the ownership of a telephone.

A VALUABLE souvenir of Gen. Grant's visit to San Francisco is a photograph of a half-smoked cigar which the General happened to lay down on the table and forgot to take up again. A photographer who followed the party about "took the old soldier" as it innocently reposed on the table where the ex-President had left it. The end the General had held in his mouth was badly riddled, as if he had bitten the end off. It does not differ materially from a cast-off stump which the enterprising boot-black rescues from the gutter. Every Grant Club in the country should have one of these photographs.

GREAT pains have been taken by the friends of Chas. De Young, the murdered editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, to show that, while deficient in nearly all the reputable qualities, he was exceptional in his devotion to his aged mother. At his funeral some demonstrative friend displayed a pillow of flowers bearing the inscription in violets, "Died for His Mother." In anticipation of young Kalloch's execution, a floral pillow is being gotten up, which will bear the inscription, "Hanged for His Father."

THE Municipal Assembly has requested the Police Board to restore to the patrolmen the privilege of "one day off duty each month" without loss of pay, and we hope the Police Board will at once grant the request. The interest of the families of the members requires an occasional vacation. Besides, such a privilege would result in improving the condition of the patrolmen, and removing the discontent existing among them since this privilege was taken from them, almost a year ago.

JOHN LOGAN lies on a bed in Chicago, smitten with intermittent fever, and when the returns from the county conventions in Illinois are brought to him he tosses up his head and occasionally inquires about something in a restless way. The news from Mississippi and Wisconsin will probably throw the Senator into a congestive chill.

NEARLY all the newspapers have published notices of the death of James A. Bayard, of Delaware, father of the Senator. The old gentleman is not dead, but very ill. The mistaken announcement of his death grew out of a premature publication of his biography in one of the New York papers.

NOW that the grass is green, the buds sprouting and the lambkins gamboling, we hear the battle-cry of "On to Oklahoma" rising up from the frontier. When the time comes for people in Southern Kansas to go barefooted, it is impossible to suppress the desire for emigration.

THE ancillary Widow Oliver is still pursuing the venerable Simon Cameron in the Washington courts, but as Mr. Cameron permanently retired from politics some years ago, the incident cannot have the least bearing on the issues of the present campaign.

COL. DON MORRISON dined yesterday with Grant at Springfield. Is there treason here? Can it be possible that the patriotic Colonel has been lured by the blandishments of the third term?

JOKES about penitentiary birds who are opposed to first, second and third terms are highly inappropriate.

PERSONAL.

—Tennyson looks old and exhausted, and his latest poetry shows it.

—Schuyler Colfax wants politics to be decent and respectable, and he proves his sincerity by keeping out of 'em.

—Seth Green says that much money can be made by those who will raise frogs. The frog business will now take a jump.

—It is reported that Secretary Carl Schurz is engaged to a Miss Irish, of Washington. She is a skillfull piano-player, and so is Mr. Schurz.

—Bishop Levi Scott is now the senior bishop of the Methodist Church. He is 78 years old, and is a deeply pious man, held in affectionate regard throughout the church.

—A love-struck youth has sent a poem to Mary Anderson, beginning, "Fair flowret of the lea." He has got things mixed. Neilson is the fair flowret of the Lee. At any rate, she used to be.

—Miss Annie Louise Cary made a flying visit to her Maine home on last Saturday. After the Cincinnati festival she will go to Europe with friends on a vacation of three or four months for perfect rest.

—A Massachusetts clergyman was receiving $300 a year, which was raised to $600. But he protested because it took half his time to collect the $300, and if he had the $600 to collect there would be no time for writing sermons.

—Simon Cameron is still very straight. His face is full and deeply marked; his eyebrows are bushy and gray; his straight, gray hair is long. He owns several farms, takes little interest in politics, reads much, and is worth several millions of dollars.

—Mr. H. J. Byron, the dramatic writer, is of the family to which the poet Byron belonged. His father, Henry Byron, was a grandson of William, fourth Lord Byron, who was the poet's great-grandfather. Mr. H. J. Byron's great-uncle, the Admiral John Byron, whose books of voyages are still popular, was the poet's grandfather.

—Mr. Bret Harte, it is reported by the Berliner Tageblatt, has begun a libel suit against a Berlin newspaper which, in an unpleasant and uncalled-for manner, mentioned him as having a fondness for the cheering cup. The Tageblatt with some feeling refers to the different fashion in which a literary German, Herr Bodenstedt, has been treated in America.

—The son of the Burmese King, Theebau, for whom, last year, a cradle of gold was made, encrusted with diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds of incredible value, has just died of small-pox. Vast sums were spent upon the little fellow, and all the people living round the Palace stockade had to buy new cooking kettles lest the smell of rancid oil from the old ones might offend his tender little nose.

How He Will Use the Pardoning Power.

[From the Plattsburg Lever.]

Col. Crittenden paid us a visit on Wednesday, and at the request of a number of citizens delivered a short address in the court-room. His remarks were well received and he made a most favorable impression. His position in relation to the execution of the laws, and his purpose to faithfully enforce them, if elected, elicited the most hearty applause. He said he would not pardon criminals after a court had duly tried and sentenced them, unless it was clear and unquestionable that an unjust punishment had been inflicted.

Bayard Delegates From Texas.

[From the Washington Sentinel.]

John Hancock, ex-member of Congress from Texas, and recently appointed a delegate to the Cincinnati Convention, writes that "what influence I may have will be directed to the nomination of Bayard as our best chance to defeat Gen. Grant." We have reason to believe that Governor Stockdale, another delegate, entertains the same sensible opinion, and hence it is all wrong to put Texas down for General Hancock.

In Favor of Tom.

[From the Glasgow Journal.]

Crittenden is a man above reproach or suspicion, a sound Democrat and an able man, and his nomination would be an honor to the Democratic party, and insure the people an era of good government.

The Plunderers For Him.

[From the New York Sun.]

Blaine has got rich; he has made money enough, and very likely would make a less corrupt administration than Grant. It is well known that Grant is comparatively poor, and very grasping. Somehow the plunderers have a natural inclination toward him.

A Necessary Apparatus.

[From the Atlanta Constitution.]

The Pennsylvania Board of Pardons is the salvation of the Republican party of that State. If the Board remains in session until election day a majority of the party will be out of jail and will probably be allowed to vote at the next election.

Awakened at Last.

[From the Courier-Journal.]

Wheeler, it seems, has at last awakened to a realization of his duties as Vice President under Hayes. At least, he has announced his intention to attend some of the county fairs this spring.

Quantum Suff.

[From the New York World.]

The Louisville Courier-Journal announces that "Mr. Tilden is an idea, an issue, a quantum in American politics." But is he a "quantum-suff"?

Everybody Happy.

[From the New York Tribune.]

If the Presidental Bureaus are right, there will be three candidates nominated at Chicago on the first ballot. That would make everybody happy.

Merely an Accident.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial.]

We presume the appearance of the Hon. Eugene Hale in Chicago at this time is not quite an accident. It is a coincidence.

A Poor Argument.

[From the New York Tribune.]

There is here and there a Grant advocate who keeps up the old habit of saying he wants to have the General nominated because he is the strongest candidate his party has. As the nomination is the only one which is likely to start a Republican bolt, this style of arguing was long ago retired as decrepit.

A Tough Wire.

[From the Boston Post.]

The wire attached to the Gramercy Park door-bell will stand a weight of seven hundred thousand pounds to the inch.

The Negro Spectre.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

The track may as well be cleared for the Bruce boom; the managers of that movement are very much in earnest.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Simple Sparrow.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please inform me through your valuable columns whether any law exists to prohibit a person catching and selling the sparrows that build their nests inside of the yards owned or rented by him.

ANXIOUS ENQUIRER.

[The domesticated sparrow within the city limits is protected by the sheltering arm of the law. It is unlawful to shoot or snare them.—ED. P.-D.]

An Indignant Chevalier.

ST. LOUIS, May 3, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please inform me, through the columns of your valuable paper, whether or not there exists an ordinance prohibiting citizens from riding or driving their horses out of a walk while on Fourth street. On last Saturday afternoon I was riding my horse along Fourth street at the rate of about three miles per hour, when near Olive street I was accosted by a blue-coated minion of the law, bedecked with brass buttons, sporting a slim walking cane and braced up with a stiff collar, who, notwithstanding the fact that no one was at that time crossing or about to cross the street, commanded me, in tones which would have honored Napoleon Bonaparte while at the head of his legions, to walk my horse. At this time there were on the same street and passing before the aforesaid minion several vehicles moving at a much faster speed than that which I was going, and whose occupants were allowed to pass on without interruption from the dignified functionary with the slim cane and stiff collar. I protest against this mode of infringement on the rights of citizens, or at least the rights of some citizens to the exclusion of others. Why is it that I was obliged to walk my horse, at the command of this individual, and others by the authority of the same man were allowed to move at a break-neck pace, I certainly cannot understand.

CITIZEN.

A Few Objections.

SPRINGFIELD, MO., May 4, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your correspondent's account of the visit of the St. Louis gentlemen to Marshfield on Sunday last, and printed in yesterday's issue, your readers are informed that the surviving citizens of our stricken sister town are so timorous that on the approach of a thunder-storm they now incontinently take to cellars, caves, ditches and the open prairie for safety, and also that the citizens of Springfield act in the same way.

I cannot, of course, speak for Marshfield, but take occasion to say that, so far as our people are concerned, the story is the merest bosh, worthy only to be put in the same category with the St. Louis "Weather Prophet's" cock and bull stories about the gambols of balls of red-hot lightning in front and rear of the late terrible tornado and the achievements of electricity in stripping trees of their bark and making brooms of their smaller branches! The tornado was bad enough, in all conscience, but don't publish as scientific truth the statements of observers crazed the time by the calamity that was then on their families and neighbors, nor write down the people of Southwest Missouri as cowardly children. We have no fear of witnessing in our day the recurrence of such a calamity. The lightning does not strike twice in the same place." Let us not frighten immigration away from Missouri by conveying the impression that this is the natural highway of cyclones. We have survived the reputation of being the "Robber State." Don't wantonly make out-siders believe that we sleep in caves and cellars from fear of tornados.

The "Oaken Hearts" Case.

There were some depositions taken to-day before United States Commissioner A. P. Selby in the "Oaken Hearts" injunction case, lately transferred from the Circuit Court to the United States Court. The proceedings commenced at half-past ten this morning. Mr. Charles Pope and Mrs. Dalziel (Dickie Lingard) were present in obedience to the summons, but Mr. Dalziel was not there and he is the one most wanted. The Deputy Marshal could not find him. The object of the depositions is to get at the true contents of the manuscript of "Oaken Hearts." Most of the day was taken up in the examination of Mrs. Dalziel, Mr. Pope not being put upon the stand till late in the afternoon. The ground gone over in the examination was the same as that traversed in the proceedings before Judge Adams, of the Circuit Court. Hermann, the celebrated legal prestidigitateur, was counsel for Herne, and Mr. Frank McCabe for the defendants. Mr. Frederick W. Bert, late of Portland, Oregon, and Herne's business manager, was present.

Narrow Escape.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Grubbs, who resides at No. 2528 Division street, was out riding. She had with her in the vehicle an infant child and also a lady friend. The pleasure-seekers drove out to Forest Park and while enjoying the beauty of that resort the horse took fright and ran away. The animal made directly for the railroad track, when it was stopped by Officer Becktold, before any damage was done to vehicle or occupants. It was fortunate to all concerned that the afternoon train was not passing at the time the frightened animal reached the track; otherwise a more disastrous result might have occurred.

Criminal Court.

Last evening the Criminal Court adjourned until next Monday morning, when the following cases will be called for trial: John L. Gannod, burglary in second degree and larceny; Timothy Daily, burglary; John Keefe, grand larceny; W. B. Golding, false pretenses and grand larceny; John C. Schnaufer, assault to kill; the State vs. Joseph Metzger, grand larceny.

NORTH ST. LOUIS LOCALS.

This morning Charles C. Crone sold a valuable tract of land on Fourteenth and Grand avenue to P. H. Saal.

This morning Wm. Dickson and Miss Belle Carley, of Venice, Ill., were united in marriage by Justice J. H. Buenemann.

Thursday evening next the Branch Guards will give their annual hop and drill at Social Turner Hall, Thirteenth and Monroe streets. All regimental officers of the city have been invited and a grand time is anticipated.

Patrick Carley, thirteen years old, while climbing up a tree in his father's yard, near the powder magazines, fell off and dislocated his ankle and severely bruised himself about the body. Dr. Kline attends.

The work of filling out Fourteenth street from Grand avenue to College avenue has been commenced, and as soon as it is finished the tracks of the Benton-Bellefontaine Railroad will be extended over to O'Fallon Park.

This morning at daylight a fire was discovered in the stable of John D. Kinney, on Bloomer avenue and Main street, Lowell, but the flames were extinguished with a few buckets of water, at a loss of $10. The fire originated from a lighted cigar which was dropped in the hay.

POST-DISPATCH,
111 North Fifth Street.

For North St. Louis.

The rapid growth of our circulation has induced us to establish a separate office of the POST-DISPATCH for North St. Louis.

Our North St. Louis branch is at the corner of Eleventh and Exchange streets, or 2124 North Eleventh.

Any failure or omission in the regular and prompt delivery of the POST-DISPATCH by carriers north of Cass avenue should be at once reported to the branch office.

We are doing our very best to enlarge and perfect our carrier system in North St. Louis, and have already established numerous new routes that became a necessity. But as nothing is perfect in the beginning we must beg our new friends and readers to have a little patience. Only a few days and the delivery of the paper by carriers shall be as perfect in Bremen as at the Court-house.

In the meantime all suggestions, orders for the paper, news items or advertisements, from the northern part of St. Louis, should be sent to our branch office, 2124 North Eleventh street.

THE St. Louis Fair Association will not undertake the management of the military tournament this year. The experience of last year was entirely sufficient.

BISHOP'S boom went down in the turbid political waters of Ohio yesterday, and not a spar is left floating to indicate the latitude and longitude of the disaster.

IT would seem that the spectacle of Cameron gibbets lining the thoroughfares of Pennsylvania no longer terrifies the small politicians of that intellectual State. This is almost surprising.

IT is thought that Hayes' veto of the small deficiency bill has effectually settled the proposed adjournment of Congress on the first of June. The session will run far into July and the dog days.

THE fire at Bradford, Pa., yesterday was more of a calamity than was at first supposed. A hundred oil wells and all their appointments were destroyed and hundreds of people have been reduced to want.

THE Republican primaries in Chicago will be held on Saturday evening. If John Logan's fever intermits sufficiently the Grant boom will undoubtedly secure some aid and sympathy. The wires have been adjusted.

A NOTICE has been served by the House Committee on Appropriations on the Board of Indian Commissioners that resignations are fashionable and in order. It is proposed to rid the country of this ancient and stupid fraud.

SEVEN Republican conventions were held in as many States yesterday, and the only consolation that the Grant boomers extracted was obtained from the one in this city, which was expressly called to oppose the third term. The smallness of the body was a source of comfort to the conspirators.

GRANT'S reception at Springfield last Wednesday was utterly devoid of enthusiasm. The coolness of his presence was similar to that which Charles Francis Adams creates in Eastern Massachusetts when he steps out upon his porch on a winter afternoon to examine the mercury in the thermometer.

SEVERAL hundred Republicans in Cincinnati publish their names in the Commercial with the remark that they are opposed to Gen. Grant for a third term. Few of them are politicians. The Commercial says that if an effort were made throughout the city the list could be increased to thousands. The Cincinnati Grant Club, composed of ward bummers, broken down political hacks and ex-office-holders, looks insignificant beside the Commercial's array of reputable names.

A REVENUE cutter has been ordered to proceed from San Francisco to the relief of Jim Bennett's yacht "Jeannette," which started out about a year ago to bring in the returns from the North Pole. This is in accordance with the established industry. The searcher goes forth this year and the searcher for the searcher sets sail the next. When Mr. Bennett laid out to advertise the Herald by his raid on the North Pole, we had a misgiving that the Government would be thrown in for a bill of expenses, and, sure enough, our sagacity has been vindicated again.

PLUNGED into hopeless bankruptcy, the Turkish Government is now staving off its creditors by resort to the Micawber system of financiering. Holders of claims, after months of delay, are given orders on provincial boards which are as moneyless as the extinct Mussulmans in the dusty tombs of Scutari. The thriftless and lazy Turk has made a complete and shameful failure in his attempt to conduct a government among modern nations. Ironclads and improved rifles are too much of a luxury for a people naturally nomadic and trained to a government of pure force and rapacity. The best thing that the Sultan could do would be to make an assignment for the benefit of his health and creditors. Mr. John Bull, owing to his personal interests, would not make a good assignee, but he could doubtless furnish one on short notice.

THE BATTLE'S CLOSE.

Of the 756 delegates that will constitute the Chicago Convention all are already elected except the following:

Nevada	6	Minnesota	10
Florida	8	Nebraska	6
Michigan	22	Dakota	2
West Virginia	10	Alabama	20
Illinois	42	Louisiana	16
Colorado	6
Total	148

Of the 608 delegates already elected the following will represent Grant's strength upon the assumption that the unit rule will not be broken—that is, that the votes of the Blaine minorities will be cast for Grant:

New York	70	Pennsylvania	58
Arizona	2	Arkansas	12
Georgia	6	Kentucky	24
Massachusetts	4	Missouri	30
South Carolina	14	Texas	16
Virginia	22	Tennessee	18
Mississippi	5	North Carolina	6
Total	287

It will require just 379 votes to nominate. GEN. Grant is to-day just ninety-two votes short. Can he gain them? Let us see.

The situation in a nutshell is that Grant must carry ninety-two of the last 148 delegates yet to be elected or he is beaten, even if the unit rule prevails—something most improbable.

He has no prospects whatever in Michigan (32), West Virginia (10), Minnesota (10) and Nebraska (6). These States are conceded to be against him. This just leaves 100 votes to draw from. Grant must receive 92 of these to have a bare majority. That is, he must get almost every vote from Illinois (42), Nevada (6), Florida (8), Dakota (2), Alabama (20), Louisiana (16) and Colorado (6).

He cannot do it. Grant is beaten. Even if he should get the solid vote of Illinois, he is sure to lose more than enough in Louisiana, Florida and Alabama, where Sherman's Treasury gang will control the party machinery.

We have given the figures as they are, without the slightest prejudice. We have given a favorable estimate of Grant's strength by assuming that the "unit" rule will be allowed to stand. But this is extremely improbable. It is almost certain that if the Grant men have not a positive and sincere majority of the convention the unit rule will be immediately set aside and delegates will vote as they please—vote their real convictions. But the very moment the unit rule falls at least seventy-five and probably one hundred votes will desert Grant from Pennsylvania, New York, Illinois, Kentucky, Texas, etc., etc.

It is with the sincerest regret, and almost in the light of a Democratic calamity, that we repeat our previous belief that Grant cannot and will not be nominated at Chicago.

—And now our dispatches confirm the reported bolt in the Republican delegation of Pennsylvania. Manager McManus has informed Don Cameron that ten of the twelve Philadelphia delegates will not support Grant under any circumstances, and that if he undertakes to enforce the unit rule decree of the Harrisburg convention the whole delegation will be arrayed against him. Thus do we note everywhere the breaking up and wrecking of the once powerful boom.

BRADLAUGH.

Since the French potentate marched up a hill with his military following and then marched down again for cause, there has been no exhibition in politics as that afforded the world by Charles Bradlaugh, the English Radical. After striving for years to be elected to Parliament the great leveler succeeded in getting in on the recent ground swell. Now he deliberately unseats himself by refusing to take the oath of office on the ground that it implies a religious belief and binds one subscribing to it to the support of the monarchy. Bradlaugh is one of the few remarkable men among the lower orders of England. He is an infidel and a revolutionist, with intellect enough to make him formidable. His object in life is to tear down the churches, overturn the English monarchy and establish a liberal democratic government in its stead, modeled somewhat after the Commune. If England could be plunged into a revolution to-day he would turn up as the blood-thirsty Danton and Robespierre combined. He is a man of fine physique, with a skull-like face, over which the skin is drawn like parchment. His mouth is square cut, his eyes deep and full of intensity, and like all men of blood and war he affects white hats and white overcoats. He is a native of London, and when a young man was a devout Christian and a devoted teacher in a Sunday-school. A spirit of inquiry led him into a discussion with his pastor and eventually landed him on the shoals of Atheism. Driven from the paternal roof on account of this, he drifted into the army, where he served for a number of years. After returning to private life he followed mercantile pursuits, and mastered meanwhile the French, Spanish, German and Italian languages. Being a Red Republican in politics, he went upon the Continent and formed the acquaintance of most of the revolutionary leaders. He became a member of the Carbonari Society of Italy and the Grand Orient of France. Mazzini was one of his friends, and for years he has kept up close correspondence with Gambetta.

He began to make himself a disturber in England in connection with Odger, a Republican of the ultra type. His speeches against the Crown were always bitter and personal, and some of his encounters with the authorities were often fierce and bloody. He is the natural leader of the English sans-culottes, if such an element can be said to exist among the poor riff-raff who constitute the social scum, and who are evidences of the degradation and poverty which are the legitimate outgrowth of a system under which the rich grow perpetually richer and the poor grow forever poorer. Naturally he is a Free Lover, though his marital relations and private life are in accordance with the prescribed doctrine. He lives in comfortable quarters near St. John's Woods, London, and busies himself chiefly with editing a journal called the National Reformer, attending Socialistic meetings and lecturing before distressed females who seek a betterment of condition. He is a man of great oratorical gifts and his fine physique gives him command over men. He is outspoken and bitter in his animosity toward the Queen and the entire governmental system. Naturally aggressive, it is with the greatest difficulty that he can keep himself out of the clutches of the law. The borough of Northampton, from which he has just been chosen to Parliament, has always been the scene of his electoral struggles, and though beaten over and over again he publicly declared four years ago that he never intended to desist until the electors honored him with a seat. It is not likely that the House Committee, to which his case has been referred, will consent to his proposition to affirm instead of taking the customary oath, and Northampton may be called upon to enact the familiar farce of electing and re-electing her favorite without end. Bradlaugh is only about forty-eight years of age. He has twenty years of active life left in him, and the probabilities are that he will yet leave a red finger-mark on the pages of English history.

ABOUT the neatest anti-third term platform of the day is that adopted by the taffy-dealing Republicans of New Hampshire, to-wit:

That we congratulate Ulysses S. Grant, the most renowned and illustrious citizen of the republic, on his safe return from his tour of the world, and we fervently wish that the afternoon of his remarkable life may be made serene by exemption from strife and happy in the respect and affection of a gratified country, whose unity he did so much to preserve and whose great destiny he did more than any of his compatriots to advance.

This is a nice platform for some Democratic convention to work by. Suppose the Democrats of Missouri, when they assemble at Moberly, declare their love and admiration for Mr. Tilden, but express the hope that in view of his advanced years and infirmities he will be permitted to close his eventful and patriotic life in the composure and serenity of Gramercy Park, unvexed by the cares of office and the importunities of politicians. A resolution of this kind, if worded so as to bring out the unselfish and patriotic services of Mr. T. in behalf of the preservation of the Republic, and at the same time avoid specific reference to his paralyzed arm and his indifferent eye, would commend itself to the gentle senses of the Sage and be almost as satisfactorily received as a solidly instructed delegation.

WHEN it comes to drawing a platform to please everybody, the Republican Yankees of New Hampshire sweep the stakes. They solemnly affirmed yesterday that there never was a financier of such grand capacity as John Sherman; that there never was a renowned and illustrious traveler who needed so much rest as Grant, or who was more deserving of a serene and graceful decline into the grave free from the cares of official life; and that while opposed to expressing any preference, they couldn't help remarking that James G. Blaine, of Maine, was about the proper person to take charge of the country and give out the 80,000 offices around which the hearts of twenty millions of patriots affectionately cluster. If Mr. Washburne had been complimented on his success as a lecturer and a resolution of condolence had been adopted touching the disappearance of Reformer Bristow from the field of politics, the platform would have been a model of its kind.

FOR years the country has vainly endeavored to discover the miscreant who struck Billy Paterson. Nobody seems to know how William came by his mournful peepers, but we are prepared to tell what it was that struck the town of Paterson, in the State of New Jersey, the other day. It was not a Missouri zephyr. It was a circus. Two weeks ago Mr. Forepaugh hung his illuminated posters on the fences of Paterson. From that moment the people did little else than lie on their stomachs in front of the gaudy panorama and talk circus. The show reached the town last Friday. All night long people arrived in the city from a distance, some of them coming thirty miles. They found the citizens awake and ready to join them in celebrating the event. When the circus arrived and the gorgeous caravan began to parade the streets the whole town went mad. The fever reached the operatives in the mills. Most of the mill owners had the good sense to close their establishments. Some of the factories which undertook to run were compelled to suspend when the procession passed. A foreman in one of the mills tried to keep the hands in by locking the gate, but the gate was opened in response to a threat on the part of the hands that they would throw him into the mill-race if he persisted in trying to detain them. One man who was refused leave to go jumped out of a window and cut his leg on the glass. He spent the morning in getting his leg sewed up, and when he went back to the mill in the afternoon he was discharged. Such excitement among the mill-hands was never before known. And the worst of the whole business was the wind was so high the circus people couldn't put up their tents and there was no show. The sorrow which brooded over Paterson and the grief which invaded the people who had come thirty miles to hear the verdant antique jokes of the pre-historic clown can better be imagined than described.

THE suicide of young Short near Cincinnati the other day goes to prove that there are many things in this world preferable to money. The young man in question was the inheritor of more than a million of dollars in property. His family was connected with that of President Harrison and he lived within the sacred precincts of the great warrior-statesman's tomb near North Bend. But nature had not been kind to the young man. It made him six feet and a half in length and gave him very little more diameter than a churn-dasher. He was the most thoroughly elongated specimen of humanity in the West. To be the longest man in the country was bad enough but to have all this supplemented with the paradoxical name of Short was indeed the irony of fate. The young man naturally grew misanthropic after he discovered the heights which he had attained. He hated women and shunned their society, for no giddy creature of the simple sex could be introduced to Mr. Short without looking up into his giraffe-like eyes and snickering. If she didn't snicker she embraced the first opportunity to remark that the young man ought to be named Long. The young man heard this stupid play on his name so much that he came to hate the world and every species of joker. The long and short of it was that he deliberately took his own life. He now sleeps in a trench-like grave, unmindful of his wealth and far removed from the impious wretch who, despite the sadness of his taking off, will insist, perhaps, in saying that, though taller than the average of men, the youth was not long for this world.

THE telephone lines of the city seem to be suffering from a severe attack of influenza or some other kindred ailment incident to the sudden changes of vernal weather. After establishing connection with the central office you put the dice box to your ear and call out to know if the party wanted is there. First comes a fluttering sound that goes straight through your ear and makes you feel as if a fly had suddenly penetrated your skull; then comes a wheezing noise as if a swarm of bumble-bees had settled on the wires. Probably a voice may come bubbling along the line after a while, but in vain you try to catch a syllable of what is being said. After frantically calling out that you cannot hear a continental word you tell the fellow at the other end to go to the place from which Dives looked up and saw Lazarus reposing in Abraham's bosom. Such is about the daily experience of every man who is afflicted with the ownership of a telephone.

A VALUABLE souvenir of Gen. Grant's visit to San Francisco is a photograph of a half-smoked cigar which the General happened to lay down on the table and forgot to take up again. A photographer who followed the party about "took the old soldier" as it innocently reposed on the table where the ex-President had left it. The end the General had held in his mouth was badly riddled, as if he had bitten the end off. It does not differ materially from a cast-off stump which the enterprising boot-black rescues from the gutter. Every Grant Club in the country should have one of these photographs.

GREAT pains have been taken by the friends of Chas. De Young, the murdered editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, to show that, while deficient in nearly all the reputable qualities, he was exceptional in his devotion to his aged mother. At his funeral some demonstrative friend displayed a pillow of flowers bearing the inscription in violets, "Died for His Mother." In anticipation of young Kalloch's execution, a floral pillow is being gotten up, which will bear the inscription, "Hanged for His Father."

THE Municipal Assembly has requested the Police Board to restore to the patrolmen the privilege of "one day off duty each month" without loss of pay, and we hope the Police Board will at once grant the request. The interest of the families of the members requires an occasional vacation. Besides, such a privilege would result in improving the condition of the patrolmen, and removing the discontent existing among them since this privilege was taken from them, almost a year ago.

JOHN LOGAN lies on a bed in Chicago, smitten with intermittent fever, and when the returns from the county conventions in Illinois are brought to him he tosses up his head and occasionally inquires about something in a restless way. The news from Mississippi and Wisconsin will probably throw the Senator into a congestive chill.

NEARLY all the newspapers have published notices of the death of James A. Bayard, of Delaware, father of the Senator. The old gentleman is not dead, but very ill. The mistaken announcement of his death grew out of a premature publication of his biography in one of the New York papers.

NOW that the grass is green, the buds sprouting and the lambkins gamboling, we hear the battle-cry of "On to Oklahoma" rising up from the frontier. When the time comes for people in Southern Kansas to go barefooted, it is impossible to suppress the desire for emigration.

THE ancillary Widow Oliver is still pursuing the venerable Simon Cameron in the Washington courts, but as Mr. Cameron permanently retired from politics some years ago, the incident cannot have the least bearing on the issues of the present campaign.

COL. DON MORRISON dined yesterday with Grant at Springfield. Is there treason here? Can it be possible that the patriotic Colonel has been lured by the blandishments of the third term?

JOKES about penitentiary birds who are opposed to first, second and third terms are highly inappropriate.

PERSONAL.

—Tennyson looks old and exhausted, and his latest poetry shows it.

—Schuyler Colfax wants politics to be decent and respectable, and he proves his sincerity by keeping out of 'em.

—Seth Green says that much money can be made by those who will raise frogs. The frog business will now take a jump.

—It is reported that Secretary Carl Schurz is engaged to a Miss Irish, of Washington. She is a skillfull piano-player, and so is Mr. Schurz.

—Bishop Levi Scott is now the senior bishop of the Methodist Church. He is 78 years old, and is a deeply pious man, held in affectionate regard throughout the church.

—A love-struck youth has sent a poem to Mary Anderson, beginning, "Fair flowret of the lea." He has got things mixed. Nellson is the fair flowret of the Lee. At any rate, she used to be.

—Miss Annie Louise Cary made a flying visit to her Maine home on last Saturday. After the Cincinnati festival she will go to Europe with friends on a vacation of three or four months for perfect rest.

—A Massachusetts clergyman was receiving $300 a year, which was raised to $600. But he protested because it took half his time to collect the $300, and if he had the $600 to collect there would be no time for writing sermons.

—Simon Cameron is still very straight. His face is full and deeply marked; his eyebrows are bushy and gray; his straight, gray hair is long. He owns several farms, takes little interest in politics, reads much, and is worth several millions of dollars.

—Mr. H. J. Byron, the dramatic writer, is of the family to which the poet Byron belonged. His father, Henry Byron, was a grandson of William, fourth Lord Byron, who was the poet's great-grandfather. Mr. H. J. Byron's great-uncle, the Admiral John Byron, whose books of voyages are still popular, was the poet's grandfather.

—Mr. Bret Harte, it is reported by the Berliner Tageblatt, has begun a libel suit against a Berlin newspaper which, in an unpleasant and uncalled-for manner, mentioned him as having a fondness for the cheering cup. The Tageblatt with some feeling refers to the different fashion in which a literary German, Herr Bodenstedt, has been treated in America.

—The son of the Burmese King, Theebau, for whom, last year, a cradle of gold was made, encrusted with diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds of incredible value, has just died of small-pox. Vast sums were spent upon the little fellow, and all the people living round the Palace stockade had to buy new cooking kettles lest the smell of rancid oil from the old ones might offend his tender little nose.

How He Will Use the Pardoning Power.

[From the Plattsburg Lever.]

Col. Crittenden paid us a visit on Wednesday, and at the request of a number of citizens delivered a short address in the court-room. His remarks were well received and he made a most favorable impression. His position in relation to the execution of the laws, and his purpose to faithfully enforce them, if elected, elicited the most hearty applause. He said he would not pardon criminals after a court had duly tried and sentenced them, unless it was clear and unquestionable that an unjust punishment had been inflicted.

Bayard Delegates From Texas.

[From the Washington Sentinel.]

John Hancock, ex-member of Congress from Texas, and recently appointed a delegate to the Cincinnati Convention, writes that "what influence I may have will be directed to the nomination of Bayard as our best chance to defeat Gen. Grant." We have reason to believe that Governor Stockdale, another delegate, entertains the same sensible opinion, and hence it is all wrong to put Texas down for General Hancock.

In Favor of Tom.

[From the Glasgow Journal.]

Crittenden is a man above reproach or suspicion, a sound Democrat and an able man, and his nomination would be an honor to the Democratic party, and insure the people an era of good government.

The Plunderers For Him.

[From the New York Sun.]

Blaine has got rich; he has made money enough, and very likely would make a less corrupt administration than Grant. It is well known that Grant is comparatively poor, and very grasping. Somehow the plunderers have a natural inclination toward him.

A Necessary Apparatus.

[From the Atlanta Constitution.]

The Pennsylvania Board of Pardons is the salvation of the Republican party of that State. If the Board remains in session until election day a majority of the party will be out of jail and will probably be allowed to vote at the next election.

Awakened at Last.

[From the Courier-Journal.]

Wheeler, it seems, has at last awakened to a realization of his duties as Vice President under Hayes. At least, he has announced his intention to attend some of the county fairs this spring.

Quantum Suff.

[From the New York World.]

The Louisville Courier-Journal announces that "Mr. Tilden is an idea, an issue, a quantum in American politics." But is he a "quantum-suff"?

Everybody Happy.

[From the New York Tribune.]

If the Presidental Bureaus are right, there will be three candidates nominated at Chicago on the first ballot. That would make everybody happy.

Merely an Accident.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial.]

We presume the appearance of the Hon. Eugene Hale in Chicago at this time is not quite an accident. It is a coincidence.

A Poor Argument.

[From the New York Tribune.]

There is here and there a Grant advocate who keeps up the old habit of saying he wants to have the General nominated because he is the strongest candidate his party has. As his nomination is the only one which is likely to start a Republican bolt, this style of argument was long ago retired as decrepit.

A Tough Wire.

[From the Boston Post.]

The wire attached to the Gramercy Park door-bell will stand a weight of seven hundred thousand pounds to the inch.

The Negro Spectre.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

The track may as well be cleared for the Bruce boom; the managers of that movement are very much in earnest.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Simple Sparrow.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please inform me through your valuable columns whether any law exists to prohibit a person catching and selling the sparrows that build their nests inside of the yards owned or rented by him.

ANXIOUS ENQUIRER.

[The domesticated sparrow within the city limits is protected by the sheltering arm of the law. It is unlawful to shoot or snare them.—ED. P.-D.]

An Indignant Chevalier.

ST. LOUIS, May 3, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please inform me, through the columns of your valuable paper, whether or not there exists an ordinance prohibiting citizens from riding or driving their horses out of a walk while on Fourth street. On last Saturday afternoon I was riding my horse along Fourth street at the rate of about three miles per hour, when near Olive street I was accosted by a blue-coated minion of the law, bedecked with brass buttons, sporting a slim walking cane and braced up with a stiff collar, who, notwithstanding the fact that no one was at that time crossing or about to cross the street, commanded me, in tones which would have honored Napoleon Bonaparte while at the head of his legions, to walk my horse. At this time there were on the same street and passing before the aforesaid minion several vehicles moving at a much faster speed than that which I was going, and whose occupants were allowed to pass on without interruption from the dignified functionary with the slim cane and stiff collar. I protest against this mode of infringement on the rights of citizens, or at least the rights of some citizens to the exclusion of others. Why is it that I was oblized to walk my horse, at the command of this individual, and others by the authority of the same man were allowed to move at a break-neck pace, I certainly cannot understand.

CITIZEN.

A Few Objections.

SPRINGFIELD, MO., May 4, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your correspondent's account of the visit of the St. Louis gentlemen to Marshfield on Sunday last, and printed in yesterday's issue, your readers are informed that the surviving citizens of our stricken sister town are so timorous that on the approach of a thunder-storm they now incontinently take to cellars, caves, ditches and the open prairie for safety, and also that the citizens of Springfield act in the same way.

I cannot, of course, speak for Marshfield, but take occasion to say that, so far as our people are concerned, the story is the merest bosh, worthy only to be put in the same category with the St. Louis "Weather Prophet's" cock and bull stories about the gambols of balls of red-hot lightning in front and rear of the late terrible tornado and the achievements of electricity in stripping trees of their bark and making brooms of their smaller branches! The tornado was bad enough, in all conscience, but don't publish as scientific truth the statements of observers crazed the time by the calamity that was then on their families and neighbors, nor write down the people of Southwest Missouri as cowardly children. We have no fear of witnessing in our day the recurrence of such a calamity. "The lightning does not strike twice in the same place." Let us not frighten immigration away from Missouri by conveying the impression that this is the natural highway of cyclones. We have survived the reputation of being the "Robber State." Don't wantonly make out-siders believe that we sleep in caves and cellars from fear of tornados.

The "Oaken Hearts" Case.

There were some depositions taken to-day before United States Commissioner A. P. Selby in the "Oaken Hearts" injunction case, lately transferred from the Circuit Court to the United States Court. The proceedings commenced at half-past ten this morning. Mr. Charles Pope and Mrs. Dalziel (Dickie Lingard) were present in obedience to the summons, but Mr. Dalziel was not there and he is the one most wanted. The Deputy Marshal could not find him. The object of the depositions is to get at the true contents of the manuscript of "Oaken Hearts." Most of the day was taken up in the examination of Mrs. Dalziel, Mr. Pope not being put upon the stand till late in the afternoon. The ground gone over in the examination was the same as that traversed in the proceedings before Judge Adams, of the Circuit Court. Hermann, the celebrated legal prestidigitateur, was counsel for Herne, and Mr. Frank McCabe for the defendants. Mr. Frederick W. Bert, late of Portland, Oregon, and Herne's business manager, was present.

Narrow Escape.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Grubbs, who resides at No. 2528 Division street, was out riding. She had with her in the vehicle an infant child and also a lady friend. The pleasure-seekers drove out to Forest Park and while enjoying the beauty of that resort the horse took fright and ran away. The animal made directly for the railroad track, when it was stopped by Officer Becktold, before any damage was done to vehicle or occupants. It was fortunate to all concerned that the afternoon train was not passing at the time the frightened animal reached the track; otherwise a more disastrous result might have occurred.

Criminal Court.

Last evening the Criminal Court adjourned until next Monday morning, when the following cases will be called for trial: John L. Gannon, burglary in second degree and larceny; Timothy Daily, burglary; John Keefe, grand larceny; W. B. Golding, false pretenses and grand larceny; John C. Schnaufer, assault to kill; the State vs. Joseph Metzger, grand larceny.

NORTH ST. LOUIS LOCALS.

This morning Charles C. Crone sold a valuable tract of land on Fourteenth and Grand avenue to P. H. Snal.

This morning Wm. Dickson and Miss Belle Carley, of Venice, Ill., were united in marriage by Justice J. H. Buenemann.

Thursday evening next the Branch Guards will give their annual hop and drill at Social Turner Hall, Thirteenth and Monroe streets. All regimental officers of the city have been invited and a grand time is anticipated.

Patrick Carley, thirteen years old, while climbing up a tree in his father's yard, near the powder magazines, fell off and dislocated his ankle and severely bruised himself about the body. Dr. Kline attends.

The work of filling out Fourteenth street from Grand avenue to College avenue has been commenced, and as soon as it is finished the tracks of the Benton-Bellefontaine Railroad will be extended over to O'Fallon Park.

This morning at daylight a fire was discovered in the stable of John D. Kinney, on Bloomer avenue and Main street, Lowell, but the flames were extinguished with a few buckets of water, at a loss of $10. The fire originated from a lighted cigar which was dropped in the hay.

IS HE A FORGER?

A Query Which the Police Answer in the Affirmative

Anent Gen. B. A. Morton, the Liberal Lecturer and Railroad President.

The Prisoner Identified as the Principal in a Texas Forgery.

The arrest of Gen. B. A. Morton is still the one topic of the day at the Four Courts. The distinguished gentleman behind the bars might have held a continuous levee this morning had he been so inclined and had it not been that his captors haye declined to let any one see him but his family and his attorney. He is charged by Mr. J. B. Sergeant, of Joplin, Mo., with having passed a forged check for $2,000 upon him, and the arrest made yesterday by Detective Eagan was on Mr. Sergeant's identification. The General was just on the point of going out upon the Iron Mountain train when he was picked up, and he was accompanied by his wife and adopted daughters. During the search which was made after the arrest at the Four Courts, among other portable property was a number of blank drafts, letters of credit and letter-heads of the Planters' Bank of Owensboro, Kentucky, all of them stamped with the seal of the bank, and in every particular calculated to deceive.

THE DRAFTS

were on the Chemical Bank of New York, and a rubber bank stamp in which the name of the State was spelled Kentuckey was included in the plunder. These were the most condemnatory documents that he carried with him, the rest of his papers being a large number of railroad passes and business letters from Leadville and other places. General Morton has been traveling "on the square," and this fact alone has rallied a large number of Masonic friends about him in St. Louis. Those who know the imprisoned gentleman only as a railroad president—he is the executive of a paper road down east—and as a pleasant gentleman of large means were unable to believe at first that the case was anything but one of mistaken identity. The damning papers, however, which were found among his luggage constitute so strong a case that even his warmest friends, and he has many in St. Louis, were compelled to believe the story.

Mr. Jesse Cornelius knew him as a railroad president and also as a retired doctor. He brought Mr. Cornelius' child back to life out of a most dangerous illness a year ago, and was quite insulted at an offer of pay for his services. Mr. Cornelius came to the Four Courts prepared to do all in his power for the General, was shown the blank drafts and seals and then went home with his confidence in human nature sadly shaken. Several other gentlemen also called this morning and went away sadder and wiser men.

ANOTHER CHARGE.

Mr. W. S. Johnson, a United States Deputy Marshal from Texas, heard of the arrest and, reading over the description of the General, he called at the Four Courts and told the Chief that he thought that the General was wanted in Texas. Mr. Johnson, Sergt. Chapman and Mr. Wells accordingly went down into the jail and the prisoner was called over towards the group. As soon as he saw Mr. Johnson he hastily pulled a handkerchief from his pocket and kept wiping the eye and side of his face nearest that gentleman, explaining that he had caught a cold last night, and that his eye was inflamed. The party was so maneuvered that Mr. Johnson got to the other side, when the inflammation was apparently transferred to the other eye, the handkerchief being artlessly kept between his face and Johnson. As soon as the party came out of the jail, Johnson turned to Chapman and said, "It is he. I know him perfectly, as I rode over eighty miles with him in a stage. He wormed himself into the confidence of one of the solid men of Sherman, Texas, Mr. Adkins, into whose family he was received. He forged a draft on Mr. Roots, a banker of Fort Smith, for $500, and Adkins identified him as being all right in the Sherman Bank. He disappeared at once and was never seen again in Texas."

"You can swear to his identity in spite of the handkerchief?"

"Oh, yes; I an quite sure that he is the man. I don't recollect what name he gave down there, but I think it was neither Morton nor Kingman."

A CHICAGO CALL.

Chief O'Donnel, of Chicago, has telegraphed Chief McDonough here that the General is wanted badly in Chicago, and that if a full case is not made against him here a case can be made in Chicago. Chief McDonough has secured a photograph of his distinguished guest and copies of it are being sent broadcast throughout the country. It is expected that within the next week a large number of telegrams will be received here about the gentleman, as it is thought that he is a large operator who has worked the whole country, and who will be "wanted" in a number of places. His wife and adopted daughter are very constant in their attendance at the Four Courts. The wife is a fine-looking woman of about forty, the daughter is perhaps twenty years younger. They succeeded in reclaiming their own photographs from the Chief, who refused, however, to part with Morton's. He will leave for Joplin to-morrow morning in company with the Sheriff of Jasper county.

AN INTERVIEW WITH MORTON.

Through the kindness of Mr. Lodge, the counsel for the prisoner, a POST-DISPATCH reporter was ushered into the cage and the General called to the wires. He came forward with his handkerchief over his face, but reefed it when he saw who his guests were, and when Mr. Lodge introduced the reporter he greeted him with a bland smile. He is a man of fully fifty years, with a snowy moustache, gray hair, deep-set eyes and a peculiar nose, the tip of which turns suddenly up, as though it were broken. He is a fine-looking man, and no physiognomist would take him for anything but an honorable gentleman of the old school. He speaks with a remarkable drawl and chooses his words carefully. "I am not yet prepared," he said to the reporter, "to say anything about this case. The time has not yet come for me to speak. I will say that this whole affair is a case of mistaken identity from beginning to end, and I am suffering for some other man's sin, for as sure as truth is truth I am innocent, perfectly innocent."

"This Deputy Marshal from Texas, Mr. Johnson, identifies you as having forged a draft for $500 on a bank at Fort Smith."

At this the General seemed to be utterly dumbfounded; he stared at the reporter and then at the floor, and at last said brokenly, "This is entirely new: I have never heard of this charge before. Just wait for a day or two so that I can establish my identity and every one will see how foolish these charges are." He seemed to be so grieved about the new charge that the reporter apologized for hurting his feelings. "Oh, not at all, sir, not at all. You are discharging your duty, and I have found in a long life that doing one's duty, is the only road to true happiness. This from a gentleman charged with forgery was rather cool, but he went on. "I don't think any the less of you for being a reporter; you must remember, sir, in every condition of life it is the man that dignifies the place, not the place the man," and with these beautiful sentiments on his lips the General turned away from the cage grating and walked to his cell, showing from the crown of his shiny hat to the tip of his varnished boots an excellence of tailoring not often seen in the St. Louis Jail.

Eighteen burial permits were issued by the Board of Health Department to-day.

Two Committees of the Council met this afternoon, the Committee on Railroads at 3:30 p.m., and the Committee on Revisals at 4 p.m.

The Committee on Improvements of the House of Delegates met at 3 o'clock this afternoon and the Ways and Means Committee at 4 p.m. The Sanitary Committee meets at half-past 5.

The Mayor to-day received a copy of a resolution passed by the Detroit Common Council on the 30th ult., protesting against the passage of the so-called Hurd bill, and appealing to the cities of Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, New York, Buffalo and other places to unite in opposition to the pending measure.

The Missouri Pacific Railway Company will not decide what course they will pursue in regard to the judgment of the United States Supreme Court in favor of the city, until the arrival of the mandate of that tribunal. That will not arrive here until after the 10th. The Missouri Pacific must then decide whether it will pay the entire judgment of $900,000 and liquidate the claim, or pay the $220,000 odd of back interest and continue paying the $49,000 annually instead of redeeming the bonds.

MONEY.

In steady accumulation and excessive supply, with a light demand, and easy at 5@6 per cent on call loans, and 6@8 on choice time paper. Business to-day is small in all lines, both in bank and on the street. Commercial paper is about the only kind discounted. Eastern exchange is stiffer and in brisk demand at 75c premium, small amounts selling at that. Stocks are better in price and moving more freely.

On 'Change.

Private wheat cablegrams report Liverpool as quiet. The market is steady and unchanged.

Complaints of drouth in the Northwest are accumulating. Chicago telegrams come burdened all the time with advices from the spring wheat sections claiming that wheat sown recently is in a critical condition for want of rain.

A positive reform is very much needed in the conduct of some of the leading members of the Call Board. At present there is vastly too much of what is known in somewhat inelegant but expressive slang as "monkey business." This evil has reached such dimensions as to seriously interfere with the caller, to say nothing of the delay consequent upon dragging out the time. For instance, some one bids 33¾c for May corn and then a half dozen or more others will take up the cry, all bidding "a half," until by the time the last one has finished Mr. Bartlett is confused with the din and ready to announce as genuine the "yawp" of one brilliantly intellectual gentleman who habitually and purposely bids ⅛c under. Then when others who cannot bear to have their tongues idle an instant in voices like foghorns announce the Chicago bulletin by yells of "she's all gone," or "you can't hold her down," the only wonder is that the caller retains his head at all. In Chicago men would be fined for such conduct, and in this respect St. Louis can well copy our sister city.

FUTURES—MORNING BOARD—9:30 A. M. TO 1 P. M.

Wheat—Lower. The market opened higher and advanced sharply ⅛@¼c, but eased off later closing ⅛@¼c below last night's close, heavy and inactive. Cash No. 2 red sold at $1 13¾@1 13, No. 3 at $1 09¾@1 09¼, No. 4 at $1 03½, May at $1 13¾, June at $1 05⅛@1 05, July at 96@95¾c, August at 92¾@92c.

Mixed Corn—Irregular, but higher. Regular cash No. 2 sold at 33⅛@33⅝c, in Venice at 33¾c, in St. Louis elevator at 33⅞c and in Advance at 34⅛c; May at 33⅛@33⅝c, June at 33⅝@33⅝c, July at 34⅛@34⅜, August at 35c. Cash no-grade sold at 31c.

CASH SALES—MORNING BOARD.

Flour—Receipts 2,700 brls; shipments by rail 7,063 brls. The market was stronger for xxx to fancy, quiet and unchanged for other grades. Grade sales: 100 choice $5 20; 100 family $4 90; 100 xxx $4 60. Fancy offered at $5 65, bid $5 25; xx $4 65, no bid; x $4 25, no bid; superfine $4, no bid; fine $3, bid $2 75.

Wheat—The market for No. 2 red took precisely the same course to-day that it did yesterday, opening higher, but declining, the opening and closing prices of each day being exactly the same, and also the tone of the market. No. 3 red was scarce and wanted, selling ⅛@¼c higher. No. 4 sold a fraction lower. Sample lots were in better offering, ruled quiet and unchanged, closing weak. Mediterranean brought relatively better prices than other kinds. Grade sales: 1 car No. 2 red E. St. L., 6 in Advance and 1 in Central at $1 13¾, part taken for shipment; 8 cars regular storage East side at $1 13¼; 20 cars regular to str fr St. Louis, E. St. Louis and Venice at $1 13; 5 cars No. 3 red this side at $1 09⅛; 1 car at $1 09¼; 2 cars No. 4 at $1 03½; No. 2 Mediterranean offered at $1 15, bid $1 12; No. 3 Mediterranean $1 05 bid.

Corn—Grades—There was a good order demand for No. 2 mixed in St L at 33⅞ (⅜c higher), while regular was not salable at over 33⅛; Advance sold to shippers at 34⅛ (1⅛c better); rejected scarce and ⅛@⅜c higher St L at 33⅛@⅜; No. 2 white mixed ⅛@⅛c better in St L under a good milling demand, when Ven was slow at 36⅛ (steady); Cen had 37⅛ bid, none offered; rejected do ⅛c better at close and firm; no grade brought 31. Samples—White mixed sold on East track at 37⅛@38, and this side at 37⅞; St. Charles quiet and unchanged at 38@40, top rate for fancy. Grade sales: 5,000 bu and 25 cars No. 2 mixed regular to str fr St. L 33⅞; 2 do Ven 33⅞; 5 do Adv 34⅛; 3 rejected str fr St L 33⅛@23⅛; 1 car no grade St. L. 31; 2 cars rejected white mixed E side 36@36⅛; 4 cars No. 2 white mixed St L and 5,000 bu do E 37; 2 do Ven 36⅛; 6 do St L 37⅞.

Oats—Grades—No. 2 in fair local and order request at ⅛@⅛c advance; rejected scarce and ⅛c higher in St. L. at 30⅛; No. 2 white 1c better in Venice at 32⅛, but quiet. Samples—Market almost bare, with a good inquiry at an advance. Grade sales: 1 car No. 2 Venice 32⅛, same bid for more; 2 cars rejected St. L. 30⅛; 3 cars No. 2 regular to fr. Venice 31⅛@31⅞; 3 cars do Venice (less $2 for transfer) 31⅛@31⅛; 2 do St. L. 31⅛@31⅞.

Hay—Receipts 2,863 bales; shipments by rail 268 bales. There was no material change in the tone of the market, a tame feeling prevailing. Prices were still in favor of buyers and the movement was more liberal. This side 1 car damaged timothy $7 50; 2 cars mixed $12 50; 1 choice clover mixed $13 50; 3 prime timothy $14@14 50; 3 choice $15@15 50; 2 strictly do $16; 1 fancy $17. On E side 1 choice timothy $14; 5 strictly do $15.

Millfeed—Quiet and unchanged. Sales: Sacked—200 sks bran at city mill, 3 cars do f. o. b. E tr and 3 cars do on Cairo Short Line all at 76; 1 car bulk bran E tr 63⅛.

Provisions—The market was very quiet for pork and D. S. meat, and quiet and firm for bacon. Lard nominal at about 6⅜.

Pork—Sales: Small job lots mess at $10 40 del; offered in 100 bbl lots at $10 25, bid $10; on orders, 100 brls $10 60.

D. S. Meat: Sales: 100,000 lbs loose shoulders up-country, freight 15c, at 3⅞. Offered on call at 4.10, no bid; clear ribs offered at 6.30, bid 6; on orders, 20 pkgs: Shoulders 4⅛, clear ribs 6⅝, clear sides 6¾@6⅞. We quote loose shoulders at 3.90@3.95, clear ribs 6.20, clear sides 6.35@6 40.

Lard—Sales: 25 tcs prime steam, loose, at 6⅛c; small lots refined tierce on orders at 7⅛.

AFTERNOON BOARD—2:30 TO 3 P. M.

Wheat—Dull and nominally unchanged, except the intense weakness. Only sales were July at 95⅞c and year 90⅛c.

Corn—Easier, weak and excessively dull. Sales early of August at 35@34 15-16c.

Oats—Nominally unchanged. No sales except July at 26 cents.

The Cotton Market.

There was no marked change in this market, either at home or abroad. Spots were steady and quiet, with moderate sales—647 bales. New York was also steady and quotably unchanged, while Liverpool was firm.

Produce.

LEAD—Dead dull. Manufacturers are practically out of the market and only buying now and then to meet necessities. Soft Missouri is offered at $4 50 without buyer; it is idle to speculate on $4 as a value when no one will bid that.

RYE FLOUR—Easy. Country sells at $4 20@4 40 del; on orders 25@30c higher.

CORNMEAL—Demand fair, with sales of city on orders at $2 00@2 05 del.

WHITE BEANS—Quiet and unchanged. —Common mixed and stained 50@90; navy $1 10@1 40; medium $1 15@1 25. Medium hand-picked Eastern from store $1 55@1 60.

WOOL—Market irregular and prices weak. We quote: Tubwashed—Choice 48@49c; medium 45@47c; dingy and low 40@42c. Unwashed—medium 30@32c; combing 30@31½c; coarse 26@27c; light fine 23@25c; heavy do 19@21c; burry, black and cotted 7½@12½c ₩ lb off.

HIDES—Dull and easy; buyers mostly out of the market. We quote: No. 1 dry flint 18c; No. 2, 15. Green salted—No. 1 at ?; damaged and grubby and uncured 7⅛; damaged uncured and bulls and stags 6@6⅛. Dry salted—No. 1 15c; damaged, 12@12⅛c.

SHEEP PELTS—We quote: Choice large green butcher $1 50@2; small 20c@$1 as in size. Dry—45c to $1 50 as in quality; shearings 10c.

DEER SKINS—Range at 40@46c as in quality.

BEESWAX—21½@22c for prime to choice.

FEATHERS—Steady. We quote Prime L. G. 48@48½, top rate for small sks; No. 2 do 42@45c; poor to good mixed 15@38c as in quality; tare 3 ₩ cent on large sks, 10 on small.

HEMP SEED—Nominal at $1 50 for prime.

FLAXSEED—Prime to choice crushing.

CASTOR BEANS—In demand at $1 05 for prime; $1@1 03 for inferior.

DRIED FRUIT—Equally light offerings and demand; dull and drooping. Quote nominally: Old dark apples 4@5c; new dark to prime 6@7¼; choice bright 7½@7⅞. Peaches—Old and wormy to prime 2@4; new mixed 6⅛@7; choice new halves 7⅛@7⅛.

STRAWBERRIES—Receipts again liberal (mainly from Arkansas) and condition generally good, if we except the scarlets, which were all more or less in a soft condition. The demand was good and the market steady. Sales: Per 6-gallon case—Illinois—Choice Wilson $6. Missouri—Choice to fancy monarchs $6@6 50. Arkansas—Soft scarlets $2 25; fair do $2 50 and choice $2 75@3. Good sound Wilson free from sand $5; choice $5 50; a few cases very fancy large sold as high as $6, but this was really an outside figure.

BLACKBERRIES—The few arrivals moved quick at $5 ₩ 6-gallon case.

APPLES—Dull and weak at $2 75@3 for choice russets; soft much lower.

POTATOES—There was a lull in the market, buyers showing no disposition to take hold, as they anticipated liberal receipts and lower prices. The feeling was weak and the tendency downward and the market undoubtedly lower to sell.

SWEET POTATOES—Southern yams quiet at $1 50@1 75 per bbl.

GREEN PEAS—Good demand for choice Arkansas at $1 ₩ ½ bu box; Tennessee sold at $2 75@3 ₩ ½ bu.

STRING BEANS—Steady; demand good; express receipts: Flat $2 and round $2 25@2 50. Round $1 75@2.

CUCUMBERS—Dull and easier at 40@60c per doz.

CABBAGE—Scarce and firmer at $5@5 50 for choice New Orleans and $6@7 ₩ crate for do Mobile; slack crates much lower.

NEW POTATOES—Offerings more liberal and market a shade easier at $2@2 25 ₩ brl, as in condition.

NEW ONIONS—Fairly active at $3 for poor to $4 50@4 75 ₩ brl for choice.

BUTTER—The market continues dull and unchanged. We quote nomiaally: Choice Creamery 22@24; seconds at best dairy rates; selections of choice yellow dairy 18@20; medium grades 13@17; low grades 10@12½; lower grades and grease butter 7@9c; country store packed 9@10c for common to 11@12½ for choice, fancy 13@13½. Sale, 14 tubs prime dairy at 16.

EGGS—No round lots moving; we heard 8½ bid with 9c asked guaranteed strictly fresh in cases; jobbing at 8¾@9c.

LIVE POULTRY—Good demand for chickens and a firm market. Sales: Cocks $2 25@2 40; mixed $2 65@2 85; hens $3@3 25, top rate for fancy. Ducks dull at $2@2 25.

GAME—Selected teal duck $1 25; do snipe $1 50 ₩ doz. Market quiet.

CATTLE—The supply was scant; in fact, hardly enough to make a market. The attendance fair and local speculators and the canners very urgent in their demands for light native steers and mixed butcher's stuff. Light native pluggy steers continue to be the grade most in demand, and the few loads offered brought slight advances over the prices prevailing on yesterday. Eastern shippers had some orders to fill, and the few lots of medium steers found ready sale. There were no fat native steers offered and only in moderate inquiry. Stock and feeding steers in light demand and none in the pens. Milch cows with calves scarce. Yesterday afternoon there was but little doing, as the supply was scant, all having been sold out early in the day. Ruling quotations firm.

BUSINESS

since our last report has been fair on the lumber landing, and nothing but high winds and low water can prevent a heavy business from now until the close of the season. The weather and stage of water are very favorable for the lumber business.

ARRIVALS OF LUMBER.

The Viola Parker, Capt. Thos. Parker, Jr., got in from Alton with 3 strings of pine logs, 400,000 feet, for the St. Louis Woodenware Company. The Helene Schulenburg, Captain Bob Dodds, is in from Reed's Landing with 7 strings of lumber, 1,200,000 feet, and 7 strings of pine logs, 590,000 feet, for the Schulenburg & Boeckeler Lumber Company. Thos. Ralph came in from the Missouri River with 2 strings, 20,000 feet, of walnut logs for the Missouri Chair Factory.

GONE FOR LUMBER.

Helene Schulenburg to Reed's Landing for a raft of pine logs and lumber; M. Whitmore to Stillwater for logs and lumber; both rafts for the Schulenburg & Boeckeler Lumber Co. Polar Star to Metropolis for 600,000 ft. of poplar lumber and Robin to same place for 400,000 feet, all for St. Louis commission traders, and Al. Lowery to Hale's Point, Tenn., for a barge load of logs, 150,000 feet, for Liebke & Schrage's St. Louis Sawmill.

LUMBER DUE.

Helen Marr, from Rock Island, with thirteen strings, 1,800,000 feet, for the Knapp, Stout & Co. Company, and Jim Watson, from the Missouri River, with 700 walnut logs for S. D. Emory, of East St. Louis; Little Eagle, from LaCrosse, Wis., with 1,500,000 feet of lumber for various St. Louis dealers.

LUMBER COMING.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Judge Adams rendered an opinion this morning in the Magovern injunction case, denying the application. It is supposed that if Mr. Magovern does not produce the books of the Laclede Gas Company before the House of Delegates this evening he will be ordered to jail.

THE OPINION.

The gist of the complaint on account of which the plaintiff asks the intervention of this court, sitting in equity, in his behalf, is that the defendants are about, unlawfully, to imprison him. In other words, a trespass is threatened by the defendants against the person of the plaintiff. For the purpose of showing wherein the unlawfulness of the threatened imprisonment consists, the petition shows many other facts, raising questions of great importance and no little difficulty touching the powers of the Board of Freeholders under the Constitution and the powers of the Municipal Assembly under the Charter and affecting the rights of persons other than the plaintiff.

A temporary injunction ought to inure in all cases where the petition shows, upon its face, a right thereto in favor of the plaintiff, or where a reasonable doubt exists in the mind of the chancellor as to those rights. In such cases a temporary injunction will issue and opportunity be thus afforded, after a to settle the rights of the parties. But in other cases where it is clear, either that plaintiff's rights are not invaded or threatened or that they are not invaded or threatened in such way as to entitle him to the relief by his injunction as distinguished from relief at law, it is the duty of the chancellor both out of regard for the due and orderly administration of justice and the ultimate interests of the parties to refuse even a temporary injunction.

If injunction were the proper remedy for the plaintiff in this case, I am satisfied that the questions raised touching the powers of the Board of Freeholders and the Municipal Assembly and the exercise of those powers affecting the rights of citizens not in the service of the city, as shown by the averments of the petition, are sufficiently questionable to to restrain the exercise pending a deliberate inquiry into their lawfulness.

In determinging whether or not the remedy by injunction is proper in this case, it must be borne in mind that the plaintiff's right to personal liberty is one thing, and the Laclede Gaslight Company's right to retain possession of its books and papers another. Therefore there is no question of involved property rights connected or interwoven with the plaintiff's own damage, the threatened cause of which he is now seeking to restrain. Even if the plaintiff may be said to have an interest in the books and papers of the company of which he is an officer, then it is to be borne in mind that the ordinance attacked in this case does not authorize the defendants to seize or carry away the books and papers. Under this ordinance, imprisonment and fine is the end of the law, upon a refusal to produce the books and papers.

Now does such threatened trespass or imprisonment by itself, although unlawful, confer jurisdiction upon a court of chancery to enjoin the threatening trespassers from carrying out their alleged threat? I think not.

While our Supreme Court has, doubtless, in its recent adjudications, extended the equitable remedies beyond the former limits, yet it is not pretended that it or any other court has ever directly authorized or sanctioned an injunction to restrain a mere trespass upon the person of an individual. It is claimed, however, that the doctrine of our Supreme Court carried to its legitimate consequences leads to such conclusion.

After a careful consideration of the cases relied upon I am unable to adopt this view.

None of the cases referred to relate to trespass upon the person; all of them to trespass upon property; and in such cases simple trespass upon property is held insufficient to warrant equitable relief. In the Kercheval case, 65 Mo., 686, defendant is enjoined from tearing down a building, not because of the injury to the building, but because of the injury to the large business interests for which the building for the time being was a significant factor. So, in the Schraeder case, 45 Mo., 508, the same distinction is preserved. Our statute, sec. 2722, R. S. 1879, has, since the revision of 1865, been before our appellate courts, and even in the most liberal construction of its meaning this distinction has been preserved.

While in a certain sense there can be

for any trespass upon the person, like, for instance, a willful assault upon a public street, mayhem, the marks of which are carried during life, or false imprisonment where the victim, for the time, is nominally classified with criminals, yet a specific remedy for such trespass is provided by law, and, in the legal sense, this remedy is adequate.

In the Boogher case, 3 Mo. Appeals, 173, the Court refused to enjoin the publication of a threatened libel, on the ground that there was an adequate remedy at law within the meaning of the statute. The learned Judge, in pronouncing the opinion of the court, says: "There is much room for saying that the legal remedy falls short of making full compensation for the injury done or of giving full protection against the injury threatened. To infer from this that recourse may be had to the preventive jurisdiction of a court of equity is clearly not allowable."

In the case at bar, if plaintiff's positions are sound, the writ of habeas corpus will speedily release him from imprisonment, if such ensues, and he has a well recognized action for damages, to recover not only damages to his person, but for his wounded feelings and time lost, and may, in addition, if the case warrants it, recover punitive or exemplary damages. This, in the legal sense, must be held to be an adequate remedy.

Many cases have been cited by counsel in which has been exercised to restrain municipal corporations from enforcing void ordinances. For instance in the matter of opening streets to the injury and disturbance of the settled rights of adjoining land owners; in the matter of issuing bonds contrary to law, whereby a multiplicity of suits is occasioned, and in the matter of assessing taxes in excess of legislative limitation. All of these cases, it is apprehended, rest for the equitable jurisdiction upon principles inapplicable to the case at bar.

I can see no escape from the conclusion that if I can restrain the imprisonment threatened in this case by injunction the courts of chancery would soon supersede the law courts, civil and criminal, in their well settled jurisdiction over actions for damages and crimes the occasions of which can be in the least foreseen or anticipated by the parties. I am not willing to enter upon this new field of equitable enterprise. The application for a temporary injunction is denied.

E. B. ADAMS.

The Colored Conference.

The African Methodist Episcopal Conference assembled this morning. After the usual religious exercises Bishop A. W. Wayman took the chair and the secretary called the roll and read the minutes of the proceedings yesterday. Resolutions providing for the appointment of committees to inquire into the negro exodus question were offered, but when placed before the conference failed to be passed. Nothing else of importance transpired.

RAKING THE RUINS.

The Safe of Teuscher & Co. Recovered From the Debris—The Contents Badly Scorched.

At 8 o'clock this morning the fire-proof safe of Teuscher & Co. was removed from the ruins of the distillery, Second and Spring streets. At the time of the fire every one was in such haste to get out that they forgot to close the outside door of the safe. The inside door was closed by a seven-year-old boy who happened to be in the office and was the last to leave the doomed structure. But for the boy's thoughtfulness nothing could have saved the papers and $600 in the safe from total destruction; as it was, the papers, policies and books were badly scorched, and it will be some time before the names of the companies in which the building was insured can be made public. The Government officials have not yet taken possession of the place, and Capt. Daly of the Fourth District has a detail of men guarding the ruins. Teuscher & Co. paid over $1,000,000 taxes on the product of their distillery last year to the Government. In a few days the wreck will be cleared away, and the work of rebuilding will be commenced, and it is expected that everything will be completed by August 1st. The body of Fred Schreiber was interred in Bethlehem Cemetery at Baden this afternoon by Matt. Herman, of 3521 Broadway, the employes of the distillery defraying all expenses. The deceased had been connected with Teuscher & Co. as sub-distiller for the past eight years, and came here from Northern Illinois. He leaves no relatives in St. Louis.

SECOND-HAND Carriages, Barouches, Surrys, Phætons, Buggies, Coupes, Spring Wagons, Harness, 105 South Third street.

East St. Louis.

Work on the new Chicago, Burlington and Quincy was begun at 1 o'clock this afternoon by a large force of men.

The Herald has moved into its new rooms in the St. John Building, which are larger and more convenient than the apartments it formerly occupied.

Mr. Maurice F. Tissier resigned the office of secretary at the meeting of the C. K. of A. held at St. Patrick's Church last night. Mr. James Malloy was appointed in his stead. The resignation does not take effect until June 1.

The mysterious disappearance of Mr. F. M. Taylor, editor of the Advocate of Belleville, has excited considerable interest. The real cause of the affair is not known and the relations of the gentleman say they can assign no sufficient reason for it. It is expected that he will return to Belleville again in a short time.

A warrant was sworn out before 'Squire Graney, this morning, by Chauncey B. Dick, against D. C. Hickman. Dick alleges that about a year ago he met with a man whom he identifies as Hickman, and they both retired one night at Strobe's house, near the stock yards. On awakening in the morning Dick found that his bedfellow was missing, as was also his pocket-book, which contained very nearly $150. Nothing further was heard of Hickman until yesterday, when Dick met Hickman on the street and procured his arrest by Deputy Zimmerman. Hickman claims that Dick is entirely mistaken.

Yesterday Deputy Sheriff Healy served notices of suit for $5,000 damages on the following persons: J. P. Metzen, Leonard Traubel, Louis Menges, Ed. Blake, Frank Geppert, George Thorne, F. Heim, M. Heim, John Weyand, F. Seppi, John Peters, Andrew Zettel, Louis Hoeffle, J. A. Kurrus, H. W. Hempe, Sam. Lanigan, Peter Helfrich and Henry Roewe. The cause of action is the injunction suit brought against the city entitled J. P. Metzen vs. the city of East St. Louis. The above persons were on Mr. Metzen's bond and the injunction was afterwards dissolved. The city sues the bondsmen for damages. It is understood that a similar action will be taken in the Stack injunction case, though nothing definite has yet been done in the matter.

THEIR REASONS.

"I have no other but a woman's reason.
I think him so, because I think him so."
—[Two Gentlemen of Verona.

Several thousand gentlemen of St. Louis and vicinity, wise through experience, are ready to give, not merely a "woman's reason," but a score of good, sound, unanswerable reasons why, in the purchase of clothing, they recommend KENT & MILLER'S, 305 North Fourth street, as the best place in the city for the purpose. They would say:

Because—K. & M. have the largest Quantity.
Because—K. & M. have the greatest Variety.
Because—K. & M. have the latest Styles.
Because—K. & M. excel in Quality.
Because—K. & M. excel in Manufacture.
Because—K. & M. excel in Fit.
Because—K. & M. help promote Economy.
Because—K. & M. keep the Prices down.
Because—K. & M. help Save, and so Earn.
Because—K. & M. make large sales, and
Because—K. & M. make small profits:
Because—K. & M. sell at Cash Prices.
Because—K. & M. guarantee Satisfaction.
Because—K. & M. refund Purchase Monies.
Because—K. & M. give One Price to Everybody.
Because—K. & M. have skilled Cutters.
Because—K. & M. have first-class Workmen.
Because—K. & M. have courteous Salesmen.
Because—K. & M. Manufacture their own goods
Because—K. & M. have no superiors in Order Work; and so on ad infinitum. The largest and best Spring Stock of light weight Overcoats in handsome patterns and nobby styles; dress and business suits for Spring Wear, for Men and Youths, School Suits for Boys, is to be found at CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Eldridge Allen, an engineer on the St. L., I. M. & S. Railroad, reported this morning the nude body of a male at the seventeen-mile post on the line of the road.

Ed. T. Lawler came in last night from his boat-building yards at Metropolis, Ill., but left again this morning. Two of the boats for which he had contracts are completed and now being towed to this city.

Thirty-nine cases were tried in the Police Court of this district during the last month. Total amount of fines and costs, $249. The amount of cash received, $119; balance, $130, to be paid by breaking rock.

The list of Carondelet subscribers to the POST-DISPATCH has increased so rapidly within the last few days the carriers may, perhaps, miss some in delivering. If such is the case, word should be sent at once to the branch office, corner of Second and Taylor streets.

The Carondelet Druids' Hall Association held its annual election on yesterday. John Krauss, A. Lay, N. Bauer, J. C. Penzler, H. Zeiss, Jacob Boucher and Killian Frank were elected directors. Officers: Henry Zeiss, president; A. Lay, vice-president; N. Bauer, secretary and John Krauss, treasurer.

The Iron Mountain Railroad Company have posted up printed notices warning persons against jumping upon moving trains. Great annoyance has been caused by boys jumping upon trains and riding between stations. The company intend to put a stop to this and will order the arrest of persons engaged in this in the future.

RISING FROM THE RUINS.

Marshfield Being Rapidly Rebuilt and Improved.

The Court-House, Churches and Stores in Course of Erection—The Patients in the Hospital.

Capt. J. G. Dodge, of Marshfield, editor of the Webster County News, arrived in St. Louis this morning. He was met by a POST-DISPATCH reporter, who gleaned the following information concerning the devastated town: The hospital now has only twenty-four patients, and Dr. Headlee, the director, believes that in ten days or two weeks the institution can be closed. One death has recently occurred, that of Mrs. Mayberry, a colored woman. Mrs. Crissman is still living, but the physicians have no hope of her recovery, and her death is momentarily expected. The outlook for the rebuilding of the city and the replacing of the stores and residences that were destroyed is most promising. The ruins and debris around the Court-house square—the business portion of the town—have already been cleared away and work has been recommenced. Freeman Evans, of Barnes, Evans & Co., Frank Norval, A. J. Warde, Dr. Wm. Jennings and R. B. Wisby are erecting fine residences. A brick block, which included six business houses, is being pushed ahead just as rapidly as men, means and material can do it. The Webster County Bank building is already completed, with the exception of the roof. Geo. Gilbert is putting up the walls of his brick block. Dr. Smith, the Postmaster, has completed his frame business-house, which he uses temporarily as the post-office, and will commence and rebuilding his brick structure within a few days. J. J. Foster next week will put men to work on his brick block. Dr. Sellers also intends erecting a brick building. Gumpert, one of the leading merchants of Marshfield, will open out as soon as his old office is rebuilt. Doling & Co., of North Springfield, have leased an office adjoining Gumpert's and intend commencing business shortly. The jail will not be rebuilt. The Court-house is to be restored. The debris has already been removed, the fence replaced and every preparation for repairing it is made. A proposition is now before the people of Webster county to issue $6,000 worth of bonds to pay for its erection, and a vote will be taken thereon on the 29th inst. The Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. J. W. Walker, of Springfield, presiding elder, will be rebuilt, and must be completed within twelve months, according to a contract with Messrs. W. H. Dalton and J. W. Thompson, who forego a claim of $1,200 against the church on those conditions.

TEARING DOWN THE RUINS

THE COST OF ITS ERECTION

will be between $3,500 and $4,000. The Methodist Episcopal Church South, Rev. J. B. Ellis pastor, is also to be rebuilt, and the ruins are already being cleared away. The colored church is also to be replaced. The school house belfry will be repaired and the school will be open for pupils in September. Capt. Dodge says a steady and constant stream of visitors pour into Marshfield to examine the disasters occasioned by the cyclone. He thinks something ought to be done for the poor people whose houses have been destroyed. In many cases they owned a small lot and house and the tornado totally destroyed their home. They have no money or means to rebuild and Capt. Dodge thinks some plan ought to be devised to assist them. Altogether the outlook for Marshfield is much better than could have been expected. The people have proved to be self-reliant and energetic, and before a few months have passed the ruins of the cyclone will all have been removed.

JUSTICES' JOTTINGS.

The New England Life Insurance Company is the plaintiff in a suit against Michael Deegan for the unlawful detention of property claimed by the company and by Deegan. It has been taken under advisement by Justice Mullery.

A writ of attachment on the property of Charles Mason, formerly a saloon-keeper, was issued by Justice Mullery yesterday and this morning was returned unserved, Mason having left the city. C. A. & J. C. Ghio, wholesale liquor dealers, claim that he is indebted to them for supplies furnished him.

D. H. Evans & Co., real estate agents, have brought a suit in Justice Mullery's court against John Schmidt for $225, which they claim is due them for having arranged for the sale of a farm containing 250 acres of land, belonging to Schmidt, and situated in Franklin county. According to the plaintiff's allegations, Schmidt agreed to pay them a certain per cent on the sum which they should receive for his farm. They made arrangements which they supposed would be satisfactory to Schmidt, who suddenly resolved to retain the possession of his property.

ABOUT TOWN.

CHIEF OF POLICE MCDONOUGH is the defendant in a suit which was instituted in Justice Young's court this morning.

A VELOCIPEDE supposed to have been stolen was found by Officer Frees last evening. It is now at the Second District Police Station awaiting an owner.

THE delegates from abroad to the anti-third term convention have all returned home. The Executive Committee will for the present retain their headquarters at the Laclede.

THE horse attached to Jno. Kilgrew's photograph wagon ran away yesterday afternoon on Locust street. The animal was stopped on Seventh street without any great damage.

OFFICER LASBY yesterday shot and killed a vicious dog belonging to Pat Hynes, living on the corner of Belle street and Bryan avenue. The dog had bitten Hynes' little daughter.

MR. WM. KUNZE, the new Superintendent of the Work-house, this morning assumed the duties of his office. Mr. Thomas Culkin, clerk under Groffman, will be retained temporarily.

THE mass convention for the election of delegates to the National Greenback Labor Convention at Chicago will be held at Washington Hall on May 20, and not the 16th, as has been erroneously reported.

THE fire in North St. Louis yesterday forced to the mind of Chief Sexton the necessity for more fire plugs, and he, this morning, forwarded to the Board of Public Improvements a recommendation for the location of a dozen or more plugs.

THIS week's pictorials, some of the June monthlies, Wednesday's New York and New Orleans dailies and Chicago and Cincinnati of yesterday may be found at the book, stationery and periodical store of Willie H. Gray, Nos. 308 and 709 Olive street.

THE city police will don their summer uniforms Sunday next, the order being issued by the Police Board yesterday. The police relief committe met this morning at the Four Courts, but no business that would be of public interest was transacted.

GREAT improvement in the appearance of the Fair Grounds has been made within the last few weeks. A number of workmen have been employed some time in beautifying the grounds. Several new animals have been added to the zoological department.

POLICE OFFICER PAUL MERCIER, who shot Jack Carr in the struggle Monday night, was compelled yesterday to remain off duty. The severe injuries he received have confined him to his bed, and it is not expected that he will be able to resume duty for several days.

EUGENE BOGARDUS will shoot 100 glass balls with a rifle at five yards against the local expert, Connors, shooting the same number at fifteen yards with a shotgun, at the Compton Avenue Park, to-morrow afternoon. Capt. Bogardus will also be present and give an exhibition of trick shooting.

SECRETARY MORGAN, of the Merchants' Exchange, has received per E. W. Herndon, from the ladies of Columbia, Boone county, $157 60 in cash, a box of clothing, a sewing machine and a barrel of flour, for the Exchange Relief Fund, to be distributed among the Missouri sufferers by the cyclone.

Last night a raid on a lottery run on Eighth between Walnut and Market streets was made by the police, under the direction of the Board of Police Commissioners. A full outfit was captured. The possession of this outfit is now sued for by George Leonard, who claims that the seizure was made without lawful authority.

FAIR ASSOCIATION NOTES.

No Military Week—Trotting To-Morrow—The Premium List—Sunday Concerts.

The Board of Directors have set aside $50,000 for premiums for the next Fair, and will to-morrow let the contract for printing the premium list. There will be no exposition this year, and the association will make no appropriation for military, musical or other special premiums. It is thought that the local militia will arrange for a tournament, to take place the week previous to the Fair. The association may contribute to the premiums, but will not assume management of the tournament. A new feature of the premium list is a liberal appropriation for art premiums, with a special view to encouraging our local artists.

On May 20 there will be an exhibition of Shetland ponies and chariots at the Fair Grounds.

The president will to-morrow award the contract for the new pagoda. It will in all probability be an iron structure.

The first of the series of Saturday afternoon driving exhibitions will be given on the new and beautiful half-mile track to-morrow afternoon. Several roadsters, belonging to well-known business men, will start in the race. President Green has spent upwards of a thousand dollars in putting the track in condition, and the turfmen pronounce it one of the best in the country. There will be no music at the Saturday gatherings, but the Arsenal band will play every Sunday.

DR. J. CONZELMAN'S Cough Syrup is the only true and reliable specific cure for whooping cough, and for coughs and colds unsurpassed.

Severely Caned.

Late yesterday evening Henry Frier and Fred. Melcher, residing on Bellefontaine road and Talcott avenue, became involved in a difficulty and the result was that Frier used his walking cane on Melcher, knocking him down and beating him about the head badly. Melcher managed to crawl to the door, and raised the alarm, which brought assistance, but Frier escaped under cover of darkness. Melcher's wounds are very severe, but not of a serious character. A warrant was sworn out to-day for Frier's arrest.
